AUTRY HAILED AS KING OF SCREEN

Gene Autry, Republic's western star, is a study in inconsistencies. Although he is only a modest cowboy who would scarcely be recognized on Hollywood Boulevard, he receives more fan mail than Gable, Garbo and other drawing powers of the industry, his phonograph records outsell Bing Crosby's three to one, and his pictures are billed over all other stars, regardless of name, throughout the southwest. His current picture is "Western Jamboree," at the Joy Theatre Saturday, with an impressive supporting cast including Smiley Burnette, Jean Rouverol, Frank Darien, Jack Perrin, Pack Ingram, Harry Holman, Ben Hewlett, Esther Muir and Margaret Armstrong. Ralph Staub directed under Associate Producer Harry Grey.

RIGHT OUT OF THE AIR

By EARLE FERRIS

BING CROSBY, the master of unique phraseology on the Thursday Night Music Hall, is about the most casual radio rebarber in Hollywood. While going over numbers with John Scott Trotter's orchestra, Bing sings with a pipe in his mouth. The pipe has always remained unlit until recently when Crosby acquired the technique of lighting up in the middle of a song. Although Jack Benny makes much of his reputation as a fiddler, at least two other members of his gang can play rings around the comedian on the violin. Kenny Baker was concert master of his junior high school band, and Schiepperman a concert violinist.

Mark Warnow, "We, the People" maestro, is one of few child prodigies to mature into a practical musician. Noted now for his versatility in handling different types of music, he was once celebrated for being the youngest maestro ever to conduct for opera in New York.

That novachord used on the CBS daytime serial, "The Life and Love of Dr. Susan," can simulate so many instruments that a regular orchestrator is required to do its arrangements. The musician who plays it is constantly uncovering new effects.

Jude Freeland, above, has deep sympathy for anyone who experiences stage fright. Jude, who is heard on the "Johnny Presents" programs with the "Three Harmonics," was so frightened when she made her first public appearance that she obtained permission to sing behind a curtain.

Mary Small, above, the popular vocalist who is featured on George Jessel's "Jamboree," is one artist that radio can really claim as its own. Mary made her air debut at the age of ten and has appeared in prominent radio shows ever since, in addition to headlining stage shows in theatres throughout the country.

Marjorie Hannon, who plays the role of Ruth Ann Dexter in "Bachelor's Children," had to sacrifice her own name to get into radio. She was given the title role of "Sally of the Talkies" on condition that she would take the name of Sally Madison off as well as on the air.

Edward MacHugh, the Gospel Singer heard on NBC five days a week at 9:45 a. m., once corrected the great Caruso on the phrasing of an English song. As a result, the celebrated tenor destroyed several thousands of dollars' worth of records and re-made them!

Phil Baker's supporting cast on "Honolulu Bound" is an exceptionally busy one. Johnnie Pineapple has his own Hawaiian band at a swank night spot. Harry Salter's orchestra doubles on "Hobby Lobby"; Harry von Zell announces for Fred Allen, Ben Bernie and "We, the People"; and Ward Wilson is heard in cinema travelogues.

Phil, himself, claims that his extra job is keeping track of the cast. Young, even when he appeared in Hal Roach's "Topper Takes a Trip," coming to the Joy Theatre on Wednesday, didn't use a speck of make-up, nor did he use a wig or "frontpiece" for his hair. In addition, he provided his own clothes.

MIDGET PLAYERS ALMOST BLOWN AWAY BY CYCLONE

Ten midgets appearing with Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan in "Tarzan Finds a Son!" playing at the Joy Theatre Sunday and Monday, may be small but they're not dumb. When the first high wind hit China Flats while the company was on location, it blew midgets in every direction. They had to grab tree trunks, automobiles and anything stationary to keep them from being blown out of a day's work. An hour later, when a sixty-foot high "twister" hit the location scattering chairs, parallels, cameras and lamps, the midgets dove for individual little cyclone cellars that they had dug.

EXPENSIVE PROPS

Furs valued at more than $50,000 were used as wraps in trading post scenes of Columbia's "North of the Yukon," which stars Charles Starrett at the Joy Theatre. The furs were sun-dried pelts, rented from a warehouse where they were just received from the Canadian wilds. They will have more value than five times their present value when converted into wraps for milady.

JAMES ELLISON SCORES

One of the most popular of the screen's younger actors, James Ellison has the leading role in "Almost a Gentleman," new dramatic film offering in which a dog plays a prominent part.

Ellison is cast as an embittered young lawyer who broods over the break-up of his marriage, caused by the snobbishness of his ex-wife's family, and who plans a suitable revenge. His romance with Helen Wood and the remarkable work of a new dog star, Ace, lead to the exciting conclusion and make for an absorbing picture.

POPULAR HERE

As far as the various studio departments are concerned, Roland Young is the most popular male star in Hollywood. His popularity is due to the fact that he is the only film actor who never causes the wardrobe, makeup and hair-dressing departments any work.
