Farm Account Books Now Available

Farm Business Can Be Analyzed to Show Income Sources, Expense

The keeping of farm accounts is one of the ways of knowing about the farm business so that it may be analyzed to know what the source of income is and the amount of expenses. These accounts can also be used when making out the income tax reports or for making financial statements when arranging for loans which are required by most loan agencies at the present time.

The type of farm accounts should be simple so that they can be easily kept with a minimum amount of labor, and at the same time be capable of furnishing the maximum amount of information as to the status of the farm business. Such a book is available with the O. S. C. Farm Account Book which can be secured from the County Agent's office at the cost of printing which is 25c. This book also has space for making out the inventory which is needed in addition to the financial statement.

If you need further help in starting your accounts, we will be glad to assist you, states George Nelson, County Agent.

News of the Theatre

"KID NIGHTINGALE" MAKES LOCAL BOW AT JOY SAT.

"Kid Nightingale," new Warner Bros. comedy featuring John Payne and Jane Wyman, which opens at the Joy Theatre Saturday, is about a prize fighter. But, what a fighter! He likes to sing much more than he likes to fight, and to tell the truth he sings much better than he fights. It's really a singing career that is the ambition of the youngster, portrayed by Payne, but he gets detoured onto the road leading to the heavyweight boxing championship by a couple of slickers. They are interested in him when they observe how heavily not only Miss Wyman, but also the women in the class over which she presides, fall for him. In addition to ballyhooing this fact the managers also encourage their fighter to sing from the ring each time he has a fight, thus his name: "Kid Nightingale."

NEW FILM PLAY IS HIGHLIGHTED BY FAST ACTION

"The Real Glory," the new adventure drama about the heroic exploits of the Philippine Scouts, is scheduled for its initial showing at the Joy Theatre on Sunday.

The story of "The Real Glory" was transferred to the screen from a script written by Jo Swerling and dramatizes the bold era of adventure, drama and turmoil which reigned in the Philippines following the end of the Spanish-American War, when the American Army was evacuated and the islands were overrun by religious terrorists and insurrectionists. It details the formation of the Philippine Constabulary, officered by Americans, who undertook to quell the rebellions and establish peace and order.

JOE E. BROWN CRIME HUNT TOPS IN FUN

As an officer of the law in "Columbia's 'Beware Spooks!'" which opens Tuesday the mammoth-mawed mountebank provides an outstanding performance in an exceptionally well-written story.

Brown is introduced as a rookie cop, son of a famous father whose record has become traditional on the force. Because of kindness, stupidity and carelessness, he becomes the scapegoat in a series of situations and perforce he is transferred to every outlying precinct in New York City. When he eventually allows the escape of a dangerous and wanted desperado, he is summarily dismissed.

FIND HUGE FILM STORY IN ARCHIVES

Its original story written almost 500 years ago in a time when glory was synonymous with gory, Universal's "Tower of London" brings the first drama of the 15th century to the screen at the Joy Theatre Thursday.

According to Rowland V. Lee, producer-director, the warring days of the 1400's comprise one of the few historical eras which can be dramatized without appreciable change.

"Men of the 15th century lived in the last remnants of the Dark Ages," Lee states. "Perhaps more than at any other time survival of the fittest was a vital rule. These were the men who managed to escape the executioner's ax or an equally bloody death on a battlefield.

"They lived and died by the sword and the annals of their careers make dramatic reading and potentially action-filled screen drama."

Hearing of Commission Due Feb. 16

Angling Regulations to Get Discussion in Portland by Sportsmen

The annual hearing of the state game commission pertaining to angling regulations will be held in Portland on February 16, at which time sportsmen's organizations and others interested will be given an opportunity to submit their recommendations concerning seasons and bag limits for game fish.

Of particular interest is the proposed closure of coastal waters to fishing for trout over ten inches in length for a period of about three months for the purpose of protecting cutthroat trout coming in from the ocean to spawn in the streams.

261 Beaver Live-Trapped In Summer

Animals Moved to Prevent Damage to Private Property

The state game department live-trapped and transplanted 261 beaver during the past summer and fall as part of the first wildlife restoration project approved for Oregon under the federal Pittman-Robertson act, which furnished three-fourths of the funds. The work was handled by a crew of six men, all of whom were graduates of the fish and game management course at the state college.

More beaver could have been trapped during this period had it not been for the policy of the department to remove beaver only from places where they were doing damage to private property. All planting sites were surveyed in advance for suitable food and water conditions. In addition to these requirements, the beaver were released in locations where the population was scarce or non-existent and where they would be of value in conserving water in the streams and would not conflict with agricultural interests.

Most of the beaver were planted on public lands in seventeen counties, including Grant, Baker, Union, Walla, Lake, Harney, Wasco, Umatilla, Malheur, Crook, Douglas, Tillamook, Lane, Benton, Marion Deschutes and Gilliam.

Live-trapping beaver is feasible only during the summer and fall and it is planned to continue the project next season. In previous years this work was carried on by the game department in cooperation with the Biological Survey and Forest Service but the use of Pittman-Robertson funds makes it possible to do the work on a larger scale.

Nursery to Be Provided Children

Mrs. Fullerton to Care for Youngsters During Class Play

As a courtesy to mothers with small children, the Junior class is providing a free nursery at the Junior class play "Button Button" to be given Friday night, January 26. Attendants will be at the entrance doors to take your child to the "nursery" in the lower floor of the Washington school. Mrs. Fullerton, kindergarten instructress of that school, will care for the children during the play. The Juniors are to be commended on the splendid idea; they feel that a number of mothers will not attend the play because they are not able to leave their children with a competent and conscientious nurse. They also feel that mothers sometimes are not able to enjoy fully entertainments because of the trouble and discomfort involved in holding and quieting their babies. The class hopes that their plan for free and capable care of babies will be readily accepted by mothers with small children.
