To the Editor:

I read your editorial about the member of our city council attending a meeting in an intoxicated condition. Now it is well known that a man in that condition is insane and unfit to take part in any business, and never should have been permitted to sit at the council table. Think of such a man voting for sober folk's laws! He or any other man or woman under the influence of liquor should be turned outside before he even is seated. Why do we endure such abuse of freedom in our nation?

Several years ago, I suggested that representatives of our churches and lodges as well as other citizens visit our council meetings each time to show interest in our town's business. I believe the council would welcome visitors.
