Must Do Full Job
"Our part in the conservation program is to see that every bag now on hand and in use does its full job and a great deal more. War has cut deeply into the imports of burlap from India and the stocks of this material now on hand must be shared with the military forces. We have plenty of cotton in the raw state, but mills having the facilities to make bagging material are operating to capacity to turn out war orders."

Farmers, Dealers Asked to Conserve
Columbia county farmers, farm organizations, grain, feed and seed dealers are asked by W. C. Johnson, chairman of the Columbia County War Board, to aid in the nation-wide bag conservation program launched recently by Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard.

Mr. Johnson pointed out that farmers can take the first step in bag conservation by taking stock of the bags they have on hand, by sorting them for size, type and condition and storing them where they will be dry and safe. Farmers are urged to sell the bags they will not need.

Make Them Last Longer

There wont be many more electric appliances made this year or next, so take good care of the ones you have. Metals must go into tanks and guns and ships.

IRONS

Keep them clean and dry. Watch where you are ironing. Don't iron over buckles or buttons—go around them. Don't drop your iron. Don't cool by placing in water. Keep all connections tight—even if you have one of the new automatic irons, unplug it when you are through. Be sure the iron is cold before putting it away. Any saving you make will help to win the war.
