

Mrs. America Meets the War

Mrs. America can be certain of obtaining useful and well-wearing types of blankets despite the war production board conservation order reducing the variety and sizes of cotton, rayon and wool covers. No blankets will be made longer than 84 inches except white cotton sheet blankets which are limited to 95 inches in length. Each line of blankets also is limited to no more than four colors plus white and the multi-colored blankets are restricted to combinations which do not take more than four colors plus white. Before the order, a single line had as many as 15 different colors. It is expected that the number of blankets produced will be increased by the material savings of the conservation order.

The carriage trade will be served despite mileage rationing, just as long as it's Mrs. America's junior. For the WPB has allowed the production of baby carriages to be increased to match the demands of the war. Strollers, baby walkers and sulkies also are permitted to be manufactured by June 30.

To take that stitch in time Mrs. America should not have difficulty in buying ordinary cotton sewing thread. But here's what's in store for Mrs. America's sewing basket. Deeper colors of thread may be somewhat less abundant because of restrictions on dyestuffs. Although silk sewing thread has not been produced for some time, rayon thread still is being made. And needles will have a special place in the sewing basket for these as well as pins for household use are scarce. However, buy needles and pins only as they're needed for hoarded supplies are likely to rust and lose their usefulness.

Used washing machines have become so valuable since production of new models stopped that the OPA has set a dollars and cents maximum prices on all sales of used washers by individuals and dealers alike. The regulation, which became effective May 3, also sets a ceiling on rental charges of used washing machines. The new price ceilings should eliminate any excessive prices which might be asked because of a heavy demand for this scarce equipment. The regulation establishes a ceiling price on guaranteed machines at March 1942 levels and at October levels on machines sold "as is." Every used washing machine, whether sold by a dealer or an individual, must have a tag showing its classification and the maximum selling price.

Look for a larger number of fruits, vegetables, juices, meats, fish and dairy products to be commercially packed in glass for civilians this year. This is because the war production board has allotted sufficient metal and rubber for closures for the additional glass containers.

While many housewives are preparing to put winter woollens away for the warmer months, tips from the department of agriculture bureau of human nutrition and home economics come in pretty handy. A copy of "Take Care of the Wool You Have," which tells how to clean, wash, press, mend and store wool, may be obtained from the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., and it's helpful advice in these days when conservation of woollens is a wartime duty. Here are directions for storing winter wool: first,

Look! Listen! Live!

Two women and three small children drove up to a railroad grade crossing. The gates were down to protect the motoring public from an approaching train. They stopped their car in a safe position. Another automobile approached from the rear, rammed into the standing car, and knocked it through the lowered crossing gates into the path of the approaching passenger train. The woman driver was killed and the other occupants of the car injured.

This is typical of accidents of put it away clean and store in a dark, dry, cool place, remembering that dampness invites mildew. Be sure the trunk, closet or bag in which woollens are stored is sealed tightly.

And here's more information on protection of woollens. The WPB assures us that there will be enough mothballs and flakes to fight clothes moths, but not enough to waste. For moth balls and flakes call for the glistening white naphthalene which also helps war on the Axis. Naphthalene goes into smokeless powder, synthetic rubber, dyestuffs for uniforms, protective coatings for shooting equipment, among other things. Sprays for killing moths are not so plentiful as before, but other items in closet war category are available such as the white crystal paradichlorobenzene which is naphthalene crystals. Of course, if you're interested in cedar chests, you'll find that styles will be simplified since the use of metal for locks, nails and screws has been restricted.

this character which are occurring almost daily. In more than 80 per cent of such accidents, the crossing has some special protection such as gates, flashlight signals, watchman or bells. But these warning measures, which have been installed for the protection of the traveling public, often are ignored. The National Safety Council is conducting a special campaign to stop these accidents which every day delay 38 trains a total of 22 hours—a damaging drain on the nation's war transportation effort.

Proper Handling Of Stamps Told

As there has been considerable confusion as to the handling of invalid ration stamps such as A, B and C, or the blue processed food stamps, the OPA has suggested the proper procedure. The suggestion is that each store set up a box or sack near the cash register and mark this container "invalid stamp box." When the customer presents his ration book for merchandise and if the retailer finds it necessary to tear expired stamps from the book before tearing out valid stamps, the OPA suggests that he ask the consumer if he would like to deposit these invalid stamps in the container.

The OPA says these stamps should be surrendered to the district office or to the board in the retailer's area twice a month, as it is against regulations to destroy stamps or ration certificates of any nature.

OPA Liberalizes Tire Regulations

On information from Rubber Director William M. Jeffers that supplies of grade II tires are inadequate to meet requirements of motorists eligible for them, the office of price administration has acted to make passenger car drivers with mileage rations exceeding 240 monthly eligible for any grade of new tire when their present casings are not recappable.

The action has the approval of the rubber director who governs the number of tires that may be issued to eligible drivers through his assignment of monthly allotments for OPA ration.

At present, grade I casings—new tires of the best quality—are reserved principally for drivers with mileage rations over 560 monthly while the grade II's, which are new tires in a lower quality bracket, are for motorists whose mileage is between 240 and 560 monthly.

SOLDIERS GRAVES TO BE RECORDED

The burial place of American soldiers who fall on foreign soil will be properly recorded by the graves registration units of the U. S. army. This service operates closely behind the combat area, burying the dead, recording and marking the graves and collecting personal effects. Except when combat interferes, overseas burials are approximately the same as those conducted in the United States with full military honors rendered. Rites are ministered by a chaplain of the deceased's own faith when possible.
