UNITED NATIONS AT WAR

AMERICAN REPUBLICS FIGHT MALARIA

Sixteen Latin-American republics and the United States have joined in a war against malaria, the disease which kills more human beings than die on the battle fields. The fight against malaria is the major campaign of a great inter-American health and sanitation program, undertaken on recommendation of the Rio de Janeiro conference of American foreign ministers to support mobilization of hemisphere defenses and resources.

SABOTAGE PRACTICED IN OCCUPIED CHINA

Bands of saboteurs are active in the Japanese-occupied provinces of China, according to an American scholar, E. H. Clayton, who has lived for almost 30 years in China. Piers collapse, cars with Chinese traitors in their roll of ferries into the river, and cotton mills burn. "Silk cocoon," Mr. Clayton said, "which must be heated to kill the chrysalis before it becomes a moth, are underheated, and the moths eat their way through spoiling every cocoon. But before it is discovered, the man responsible for it has flown."

DUTCH LIVE ON STARCH DIET

Brown beans and potatoes are the only staple foods left for the Dutch to eat. Compared with pre-invasion figures, the cultivation of brown beans increased more than 400 per cent, and consumption of potatoes has more than doubled. Although the cultivation of agricultural products in general has increased by 45 per cent during the war years, these products are destined mainly for "export" to the Reich.

NORWEGIANS TO WEAR PAPER CLOTHES

Norwegian workers will be wearing paper clothing this winter if they follow promotion now being given by the German-controlled Danish home radio. Norwegian textile factories have begun making working clothes from paper, according to the broadcast reported by the federal communications commission. "Tests have proved that paper clothes last very well and are creap."

30 DAYS SPENT IN LEAKING LIFEBOAT

How an American-born missionary and 18 other survivors of a torpedoed ship spent 30 days in a leaking lifeboat and sailed 3,000 miles to India because—as the missionary put it —"we considered it too early to visit the (occupied) East Indies," has been reported by the Chungking radio. The survivors lived on rations of one ship's biscuit and three malted milk tablets for breakfast and lunch, with a meat ball and three tiny squares of chocolate for dinner. Rain water and occasional flying fish that jumped into the boat augmented the sparse rations.

MEXICAN WOOD HAS WAR USES

Mexico has huge, undeveloped resources of ash, pine, and white oak lumber, potentially available for war uses. Studies of the usefulness of some of these woods have been made by the U. S. department of economic warfare in cooperation with the Mexican government. Ash is good for lifeboat handles for such tools as shovels rakes and pitchforks. The United States needs pine, particularly for boxing and crating munitions of war and needs white oak for bending stock, barrel kegs, truck bodies and wooden ships.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"That's really a great editorial you just read to us, Judge. Where did you say it appeared?"
"In 'The Stars and Stripes'... the newspaper of the U.S. Armed Forces in Europe. Kind of gives us folks back home something to think about, doesn't it, Bill?"
"It certainly does, Judge. Particularly the last paragraph. Would you mind reading that again?"
"Glad to, Bill. It says, 'We can remember the days of prohibition, when moonshine whiskey made quick fortunes for bootleggers, crooked politicians and dishonest police officials. As a result, we claim we know what we want in the way of liquor legislation and feel those at home should wait until we return before initiating further legislation on liquor control.'"
"Out of fairness to our boys over there fighting, Judge, how could we disobey such a wish?"
