Use of F Truck Approved by Law

The extent to which farmers owning trucks of "F" plate registry are authorized to do hauling for their neighbors is explained in the recent bulletin on farm transportation facts issued by the O.S.C. Extension service as a leader's handbook. Paul Carpenter, author of the bulletin and leader of the Extension service farm transportation project, obtained legal opinions on this subject, which include the following essential facts:

(1) Any "F" plate truck owner, in addition to hauling his own produce and supplies to and from his farm, may "infrequently and for a nominal consideration haul such crops and livestock produced and supplies consumed and used by other farmers in his immediate neighborhood".

The term "infrequently" is defined as meaning any number of trips not exceeding 20 in one month and not exceeding 40 trips in any one year. The "immediate neighborhood" is subject to a common-sense interpretation and varies widely in different parts of the state.

Consideration Explained

(2) For a nominal consideration but without limitation as to frequency he may haul to any market the agricultural commodities produced by neighbors and may deliver farm supplies to them, provided such neighbors are within a radius of five miles of the farmer furnishing the hauling service if the operation is west of the Cascade mountains, or within a radius of ten miles if east of the Cascades.

"Nominal consideration" is defined as any charge mutually agreeable. To an increasing extent farmers hauling for other farmers are charging the published rates permitted common and anywhere for hire carriers, says Carpenter. No restrictions as to distance, frequency or consideration apply when an "F" plate operator hauls farm products from a farm adjoining his own.
