Farmers' Load for Tax Explained

The 1940 federal census reported that value of Oregon farm products sold, traded or used was $107,550,797. Had the Townsend plan 3 per cent gross income tax for pensions been in effect that year, Oregon farmers would have paid $3,336,623, or $5,377,539 had the Townsend maximum 5 per cent rate been in effect. Farmers could not pass along very much of this tax on their gross receipts because prices of many farm products are determined by national, not local, factors. Value of 1940 Oregon farm products was divided by the federal census $60,557,456 to western Oregon, $46,993,341 to eastern Oregon.
