Street Signs Appear in Riverview

Marking Project Nears Completion; Several Give Aid

A project started in Riverview some weeks ago, is nearing completion to add much to that vicinity and leave Vernonia somewhat behind in the improvement of its streets, so a report from Riverview mentions.

The street marking was started by Oscar Steele who "set the ball rolling" by offering to furnish and print the signs if others furnished and set the posts All the material and work needed for this project was donated and those who deserve honorable mention are the Crown Zelle back corporation which furnished seven new dipped posts and a man, Billie Bassett, to stake the spot where each post was to be set; W. G. Heath, who located the posts and brought them to his station; Harry King, who furnished the paint and a painter, Everett Johnson; A. F. Schalock, who distributed the posts, and Oscar Steel and Walter Moore, who set the posts and helped in other

Display of '42 Plates Illegal

Secretary of State Robert S. Farrell, Jr., reminds Oregon motorists that it is illegal to dis-, on the front of their vehicles, and urged the prompt removal of all such plates.

The 1942 plate on the front of vehicles is misleading to law enforcement officers and there have been several cases in which drivers have been stopped by officers who thought the vehicles were not properly licensed. In order to avoid unnecessary inconvenience to the public and to officers, the 1942 plates should be removed at once.

According to Oregon motor vehicle regulations, no plate, emblem or device may be displayed on the front of the vehicle for the current year 1946 except those which may be officially issued or approved by the secretary

Farrell urged motorists to check their cars at once and make sure the 1942 plate has been removed as citations may be given drivers found operating cars with the plate still

Red Cross Fund Total Reaches $1475 Friday

The final report of funds collected in the 1946 Red Cross Mrs. T. M. Crawford solicited $7 drive from this vicinity shows an amount considerably less than the quota which was assigned this area previous to the start of the campaign, Mrs. Harry Culbertson said early this week. Mrs. Culbertson has been in charge of the campaign which ended officially last Friday.

The total collected as of that date was $1475.32 as compared with the quota of $2844. Reports from other parts of the county also indicated collections totaling considerably less than quotas assigned. The amount collected here does not include the Mist-Natal or Birkenfeld districts in this valley.

Figures were not available Wednesday afternoon for the Birkenfeld district but the amount from the Mist-Natal area where Mrs. William Bridgers was chairman, is $360. Of this amount, $278 was taken in as the result of the auction held at Culbertson wishes to thank all the women and organizations who aided in carrying out the drive, for it was through their diligent work that the money was obtained. She also mentioned that anyone not having made a donation may do so by seeing her personally or mailing the contribution.

In response to a telegram received by Dr. J. H. Flynn, county health officer, from Dr. Harold M. Erickson, state health officer, last week, an appeal is issued to all residents of Columbia county to cooperate in the current drive for smallpox immunization. At the time the telegram was received there were seven cases in San Francisco and 15 known and three suspected cases in Seattle.

Both Washington and California are engaged in an intensive program of vaccination and Oregon is following suit. No cases of the disease had been reported in the state last week.

The disease is a virulent form of oriental smallpox. Dr. Fylnn urged that all children who have not been vaccinated be brought to their private physician as soon as possible and that all adults calling 582, The Cozy Confec- who have not been vaccinated within the past five years take the precautionary measure.

April 20 First Trout Season Day

Opening day of the general trout season for the state will be Saturday, April 20, and not April 13, it is announced by the Oregon State Game commission. Inquiries received at the game department office indicate that many anglers are under the erroneous impression that the earlier date prevails. Printing difficulties have delayed issuance of the official synopsis of the angling regulations but it is hoped that distribution can be started soon to all license agencies. Until the April 20 opening, coastal waters are closed to all angling for trout regardless of size. The season is open, however, for salmon and steelhead twenty inches or more in length.

Forest Service Reports Sales

five and a quarter million dollars was cut by U.S. forest service sustained yield timber sales on the nineteen national forests of the North Pacific regian during 1945, according to a report just isseed by the regional office, Portland.

The thirteen Oregon forests produced timber sales receipts of $3,219,197, while the six Washington forests accounted for $1,-915,680. Highest ranking forest was the Regue River, in southem Oregon, with a total of $648,222. The Olympic, in northwestern Washington, ranked a close second with $644,992. tal for the region was $5,134,877.

These receipts were produced by cutting 1,084,952,000 board feet of timber, of which 717,342,-000 board feet came from the Oregon forests, and 367,610 from the Washington forests. Minor forest products, not convertible to board feet, accounted for $6412 of revenue. These included Christmas trees, ferns, cascara bark, pole stubs, and peat moss.

The forest service points out that all of the national forest timber was cut under sustained yield management principles, which means that the forest is kept in a productive state for future crops. Management of these public forest lands to produce the maximum in human and community welfare and stability in the long run is guiding principle in making rational forest timber sales, it is said.
