Pay, Insurance Leading Topics

Terminal leave pay, government life insurance and education and job training are the three GI benefits uppermost in the minds of Oregon's World War II veterans, judging from interviews with more than 3325 ex-servicemen at the department of veterans' affairs at the state fair the first week of September.

In charge of the booth was Don Goode, chief service officer, who said 750 veterans were given terminal leave pay blanks. Of this number, 300 blanks were notarized free of charge, representing pay claims amounting to more than $45,000, or an average of $150 per claim.

Questions regarding reinstatement, conversion, and premiums on national service life insurance were asked by 320 veterans, and assistance was given in reinstating lapsed policies worth more than $250,000.

More than 400 veterans received literature and information dealing with educational benefits and apprentice training. Records indicated nearly 175 individuals had questions about disability pensions and benefits, 80 wanted to know about loans for homes, farms and businesses, and 50 asked about employment.

Procurement of building materials for home construction, and homesteading in the Northwest and Alaska were other subjects of inquiry.
