Yearling Trout Being Released

By April 14, trout season opening for zone 1 (coastal waters) and zone 2 (Willamette watershed), the game commission says 225,000 yearling trout ranging from 6 to 10 inches in length will have been liberated in western Oregon waters.

Six fish tankers are now liberating in coastal waters and the Rogue basin. The main Alsea river has already received 10,000 cutthroat and 10,000 rainbow. A portion of 115,000 yearling rainbow slated for the Rogue watershed have been hauled from the Butte Falls hatchery near Medford.

According to R. C. Holloway, in charge of fish liberation for the commission, 2,000,000 yearling trout have been reared in state hatcheries for release this spring. Growth of fall-spawning rainbow at Cedar creek, Alsea, and Bandon hatcheries on the coast has been excellent, reports Holloway. Trout hatched from eggs taken in January, 1950 now average 8 inches in length.

Closure Effective to April 14 in Zone 1

Winter fishing for trout, steelhead, and salmon in zone 1 (coastal waters) ended March 11. The closure will remain in effect until April 14, trout season opening for coastal waters.

Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, Sixth Army commanding general, told a joint session of the Oregon legislature last Friday: "Oregon is vulnerable to enemy attack."

"Avoid undue hysteria." "Be prepared to deal with full-scale sabotage."

"We must base our civil defense on an enemy's capabilities, not his intentions."

The soft-spoken three star general called for strong civilian organizations to care for killed and wounded and control fires and emphasized the important role women took in the defense of England.

COMMITTEE ROOM CLAUSTROPHOBIA The Oregon legislature is a-fixin' to break a new kind of record, by leaving more bills in committee upon adjournment than has any previous session.

So far not as many bills have been introduced as in recent sessions but more have been re-referred back to committee than usual. This is ample proof that this legislature is giving careful study to all bills.

If this session seems to have been slowed up there are sufficient reasons — transportation strikes, an epidemic of flu colds, transportation difficulties caused by the weather and a statehouse chock full of pressure groups, lobbyists and political fleas.

These things do not inspire relaxed arteries and retired chests, especially after spending long hours in stuffy and smoky committee rooms.

SESSION'S END REMOTE During the past ten years Oregon's legislative sessions have averaged an increase of 16.9 per cent per biennium. The last session, 1949, lasted 97 days. If the present session keeps up the ratio it will last 113 days or until May 2nd. However the pattern of legislatures is to sine die on a Saturday, the final day would in this event be April 28th.

NEW LAWS Governor Douglas McKay this week approved and signed bills with the following purport. None of the acts carry the emergency clause and will not become effective for ninety days after adjournment.

To reduce the terms of members of the state board of higher education from nine to four years.

This law authorizes counties to appoint control area inspectors in control areas (tree, crop and pest-upon petition of fifty interested persons, or 50 per cent of such within the area, whichever is the smaller. Such inspector shall be under the department of agriculture and if any land owner or occupant fails or refuses to treat trees, plants, etc., as provided by a control area order, the inspector shall so treat and cost when filed become a tax lien.

In a companion bill the maximum penalty for violation of a control area order is raised from $100 to $500.

When only a few drops of lemon juice are required, don't cut the lemon. Pierce one end with a fork and extract the juice. Save the lemon.
