Sportsmanlike DRIVING

TAKE CARE OF TIRES

Take care of your tires! Motorists who fail to look after the "rubber shoes" of their cars head straight down a path to trouble, says the AAA driver training book, "Sportsmanlike Driving."

Under-inflation is the worst tire fault. Under-inflated tires wear out fast, make steering hard and braking uneven. Over-inflation also is a bad fault. Blow-outs are more likely. The middle of the tread gets extra wear. The tire loses road grip. Chances of skidding are greater.

Worn tires are trouble-brewers. Sharp objects in the road easily pierce them. Punctures or blowouts constantly threaten.

Dangers of accident multiply. Suddenly "flats" put the driver on the spot.

Follow seven simple rules for tire care:

1. Drive at reasonable speeds.
2. Keep correct tire pressure.
3. Even up inflation when tires are cold.
4. Never drive on a flat.
5. Avoid striking curbs, holes, or rocks.
6. Avoid jumping starts or screeching stops.
7. Keep brakes adjusted and wheels in line.

Healthy tires help YOU wear a smile!

How Are Your Sacroiliacs?

By Dr. Frank G. Spaulding "Look to your health; and if you have it, praise God, and value it next to a good conscience; for health is the second blessing that we mortals are capable of; a blessing that money cannot buy."

—Izaak Walton According to official statistics, sacroiliac strain ranks third among compensable injuries. The importance of the sacroiliac joints is a very recent discovery, although these joints are as old as the human race.

Dr. L. J. Steinbach of Pittsburgh recently declared:

"Twenty years ago the sacroiliac joints were still buried in the archives of human biology. Today, the public is on speaking terms with the sacroiliac joints; in fact, these joints are more mentioned or inquired about than any articulations of the human framework."

These two joints, situated where the base of the spine joins the large hip bones, can be and are the seat of much pain. Whether you call it lumbago, rheumatism or just plain backache, much of the pain felt in the lower part of the back is the result of sacroiliac strain. At one time or another you may have been a victim of this painful condition yourself. If you have, you know how helpless and miserable one can be as a result of too much strain on a sacroiliac joint.

The onset of this painful malady may be brought about in any one of dozens of ways—a slip in the bathtub, or on a waxed floor, or on an icy sidewalk; a strain from lifting, from working too long in a stooped position, or even pulling on a shoe or getting out of bed. The pain may strike suddenly while one is at work or play, even when the body seems under little or no strain. There is often a feeling of something giving way and a stabbing pain in the lower part of the back.

In cases of severe sacroiliac strain, home remedies can do little more than give temporary relief. Electric pads, hot-water bottles, plasters, liniments, etc., may ease the pain for a time but
