Handcraft Club Is Re-Activated

Friday evening, February 4, 10 members of Nehalem Circle No. 881 Neighbors of Woodcraft met at the home of Guardian Neighbor Erma Johnson to re-organize the Handcraft Club which has been inactive since 1942.

The many How-to-do-it yourself articles in newspapers and magazines recently have sparked the interest and fired the imagination of the members of Nehalem Circle to the extent that they have decided to re-activate the long dormant club.

Elected officers are: president, Erma Johnson; vice-president, Nona Langston; secretary, June Willis and treasurer, Ruth Steers.

Two-fold purpose of the Handcraft club is for pleasure and to learn new hobbies and useful handcrafts. The ten charter members to date are: George Johnson, E. Johnson, Robert and Alice Lindsay, Catherine Lentz, Tex Lankston, Nona Lankston, June Willis, Ruth Steers and Ina Marshall. The charter will remain open until February 25, to give those who so desire the opportunity to become charter members. Any member of any Neighbors of Woodcraft Circle is eligible to join the Handcraft club and their children may attend meetings and work on the crafts.

Anyone interested in becoming a charter member may do so by contacting secretary June Willis on or before February 25. Dues are ten cents a month or one dollar a year. The first regular meeting of the Handcraft club will be on February 25 at the home of Catherine Lentz. The project for that meeting will be announced at a later date.
