AUTOMOTIVE FLASHES

If you've ever watched stock car races, you're familiar with the hair-raising spills and collisions which many of these drivers experience—and then step out of their cars, wave to the crowd and walk away unharmed. Likewise, in accidents affecting modern military aircraft, the personnel frequently walk away with hardly a scratch.

In both cases the reason why occupants survive these accidents without injury is because they are protected by seat belts which prevent them from being hurled against instrument panels or through windshields.

Some estimates indicate that seat belts could prevent more than one million automobile injuries and 20,000 deaths per year.

YOU, TOO, CAN PROTECT YOURSELF WITH SEAT BELTS IN CASE OF ACCIDENT.

Another protection is to maintain your car in good mechanical condition at all times. Be sure it is safe to drive and if there is any question, let us check and make needed repairs and adjustments.
