Lack Of Funds Causes License Plate Delay

It will be at least three or four years before all Oregon vehicles display license plates with the new "Pacific Wonderland" slogan. Verrn L. Hill, director of the Department of Motor Vehicles, said his office can not issue the new plates for vehicles with licenses expiring because money was not budgeted for purchasing plates with slogans for all 873,000 vehicles in the state. Hill said some new-type plates are being sold for vehicles licensed for the first time in Oregon. About 90,000 passenger car plates with the slogan have been acquired by the department. He emphasized that not all new plates sold this year will carry the slogan because the department must also exhaust the supply of old-style plates.
