Nigerians See Tree Farm, Mill

Their first American picnic drew an enthusiastic response from members of a Nigerian parliamentary delegation who toured Crown Zellerbach's E. P. Stamm Tree Farm and St. Helens paper mill recently.

Site of the picnic was the company's Rogers Park, six miles south of Vernonia on Pebble Creek. Hosted by tree farm manager Bob Lindsay and forester Neil Zimmerman, the visitors from the dark continent of Africa drank hot coffee brewed over a stone fireplace, ate berry pie, peaches and sandwiches.

Earlier in the morning while touring the second growth thinning areas of the tree farm, the group spotted several deer and it was here that Zimmerman and Lindsay learned of year 'round hunting in Africa. Hunting seasons were something new to their guests.

Senator Dahlton P. Asemota, who is also president of African Timber and Plywood, Ltd., described the vast virgin timber resources in his African country, and at the same time expressed amazement as Lindsay pointed out a stand of young Douglas fir timber that had been thinned five times.

At St. Helens the rewinding and slitting of huge rolls of paper scheduled for conversion into toilet tissue and the chipping of farmer-wood caught the African's eye. Their host at the paper mill was resident manager Howard Hall.

The African's tour sponsored by the U. S. State Department, took them to Washington, D.C., Niagra Falls, Cleveland, Denver and San Francisco and Seattle, before coming to Oregon.
