THE PEOPLE SPEAK . . .

The following letters, received by Lester Sheeley, may serve to answer questions of others, also. October 8, 1962

Lester Sheeley
Vernonia Oregon

This is in reply to your letter of October 4, 1962 in which you inquired about the effect the new timber tax law will have on future years taxes.

The new law will reduce the taxes in future years below the 1962 taxes; assuming, of course, that the budgets remain the same as 1962, but will not recover the loss in taxes for many years because so much of our timber is under 12 inches in diameter.

The law provides for a harvest tax based on 70 per cent of the immediate harvest value on that timber which is over 12 inches in diameter; and a harvest tax based on 100 per cent of the immediate harvest value of that timber that is under 12 inches in diameter.

The additional taxes will be collected on the year following the harvest and the monies collected shall be applied as an offset to the various budgets within the code area on the year of collection.

Not knowing the volume of timber that will be harvested each year, it is impossible to estimate the amount of money that will be available each year for offset purposes.

Very truly yours,
Frank H. LeMont,
Assessor

Under the statutes, the tax commission is responsible for the appraisal of timber in all counties. In carrying out this work, the timber is cruised and the records lodged in each county office. This work also includes making adjustments for timber harvests and for growth. At the present time, work is being carried on in Columbia county to increase volumes of timber for growth and to reinventory areas which were first inventoried in 1954 and 1955. Through this cruise, the distinction between trees over and under 12 inches diameter is made. This work is done as a field examination by trained foresters.

There are 19 counties affected by the 1961 Western Oregon Timber Law. These are all counties west of the Cascade mountains including Hood River county.

Very truly yours,
Harry J. Loggan, Director
