TOPICS OF THE TOWN

The seventh birthday of Ricky Davis was observed November 3 with a party at which a group of little boys were entertained. Those who enjoyed the games, prizes and refreshments with Ricky were Lane Doughtry, Robbie Hanson, Marty Schwab, Robbie Hahmeyer, Donald and Myron Dennis, Steven Towne, Ray Lamping and Gary Davis. Hostess for the party was Ricky's mother, Mrs. Sam Davis.

Mrs. George Robbins is able to be about again following surgery two weeks ago.

Michele and Kelly Hinton of Portland came Saturday to spend a week with their grandmother, Mrs. Frank McCabe.

Mrs. C. Lintner of Hillsboro was here Saturday for the funeral of her brother, Victor Bergerson, then remained over Sunday with another brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Cass Bergerson.

Mr. and Mrs. Alois Sauer had all their children and grandchildren at home Sunday. Included were Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Sauer and family from Cathlamet, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gwin and family from Tillamook and Mrs. Elizabeth Parker and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wilson and family moved to The Dalles last week end. Mr. Wilson has been working there for some time as head of the appliance department of the Milne shopping center but the family remained here until he located a house for them.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Westerberg visited in Portland during the week end with her mother, Mrs. Eola DeVaney.

Mike Berry of Beaverton spent last week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Davis so that he could go hunting with Mr. Davis.

Frank Lange went to Hillsboro Sunday to bring Ted Kauppi home from Tuality hospital where he had been for more than two weeks due to injuries received in a logging accident. He is now at his home but unable to take care of his stock so Mr. Lange is assisting him.

Guests who arrived Saturday to visit Mrs. Laura Carmichael were her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hansen and another sister, Mrs. Mary Platt from Seattle and a cousin, Mrs. Grace Minton of Wenatchee.

Luncheon guest at the home of Mrs. Edison Aldrich last Friday was Mrs. Ella Olinger of Hillsboro who came to visit Mrs. Ruth Hartman, house guest of the Aldriches for the past week, prior to her departure for Seaside to visit her son Ralph and family before leaving for her home in Oklahoma in about two weeks. Others who dropped in at the Aldrich home Friday were Mrs. Bill Olinger of Hillsboro, Mrs. Joe Eggert of Cornelius and Mrs. Nancy Eckland.

Last Friday, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Valpiani, L. E. Stiff and Mr. and Mrs. Art Gardner were in Portland to attend the meeting of the Multnomah Barracks, veterans of World War I. This is the one to which E. S. (Happy) Thompson belongs and he was at the meeting and reported that he had been at the Veterans hospital for treatment for the past two weeks and would return Monday of this week for further treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Bittner of Hillsboro were in Vernonia Tuesday. They reported that two trees fell at their home in the October 12 storm and one struck the corner of the house and did considerable damage.

Stinchfields Return To Arizona Following Visit

BIRKENFELD—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stinchfield visited with Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Baker for a few days. They all went to Portland Saturday and on Sunday the Bakers went in to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Parman where they had their annual family dinner. The Stinchfields left Monday for their home in Arizona.

Mrs. Cody and Doris and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson of Vancouver and the Mickey and John Hopkins families were all dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hopkins Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stinchfield and Mickey Hopkins were their dinner guests on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rodgers and girls and Mr. and Mrs. Hebe Rodgers were Saturday evening dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Larson.

Mrs. Tom Hopkins went to Portland Thursday to spend a few days with her sister, Miss Hazel Cook.

Scholarship To Honor G. Bleile

Friends of former residents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bleile of Sacramento, California were shocked last week at news of the death of their youngest son, George, due to pneumonia.

George W. Bleile was born July 24, 1934 at Westfir, Oregon. He started grade school at Westfir and completed that phase of his education at Glendale, Oregon. He went through high school at Roseburg, after which he attended Willamette University at Salem. During his junior year he had a semester at American University in Washington, D.C.

On graduating from Willamette, he received a scholarship to Northwestern University at Evanston, Illinois where he received his masters degree in economics.

For some months he worked on a special joint economics committee in Washington, D. C. and when this was completed in February of 1960 he returned to Evanston to complete his studies.

He passed away in the Evanston hospital after a brief illness and November 5 he was laid to rest in the family plot in Serria Hills cemetery, Sacramento county, California.

He is survived by his parents; two brothers, Earl Jr. of Sacramento and Harry of San Bernardino, California, four nieces and two nephews.

A scholarship is being set up in Willamette University in his memory. His library of books on economics will be left at Evanston University for further use.

Mr. and Mrs. Bleile have gone to Evanston to close his affairs there after which they will visit in Indiana with Mr. Bleile's father and other relatives before returning home.

License Men Plan Training

Most driver licensing facilities throughout the state will be closed for one week in mid-November to permit license examiners to attend an annual in-service training session at Salem. With the exceptions noted below, no license examinations will be given during the week of November 12-16.

Although all field offices will close on Monday, November 12, in recognition of Veteran's Day, registration activities and driver license renewal transactions will be conducted the rest of the week.

The following driver license examination centers will be open only on Tuesday, November 13, for normal licensing activities: Albany, Astoria, Beaverton, Corvallis, Eugene, Gresham, Hillsboro, Newport, Oregon City, Portland, Salem, and Silverton.

The examiner training program at Salem will include all phases of testing procedures, equipment use and public relations.

Normal driver license examination schedules will resume Monday, November 19.

Please advise us of your new address if you are planning to move.

The Frills of Education

By Dorothy J. Buell

(The following article was written by Mrs. Dorothy Buell, second grade teacher at the Washington school, as a part of the observance of American Education Week and explains some of the methods used in teaching to accomplish better understanding.)

Do teachers waste a child's time with fancy trimmings instead of getting down to facts and the three R's—reading, writing and arithmetic? Are field trips, tape recorders, films, bulletin boards, etc., a waste of time and money? What is educational about a class taking a pleasant walk down the hill to see the Vernonia Eagle office? These questions bothered me, so I went to summer school to find some answers.

In studying about schools and education, I assume that children are pretty important people. In an immediate sense the children of Vernonia act in ways that give the community pride and pleasure (as the Jamboree band and drill team) or that give consternation (as breaking into a store). These actions or habits affect the community, country and world. Besides being important to the human race, a child is important to himself, also. He is not just a part of a machine to preserve democracy and world peace, but has a right to be an individual. He has a right to be himself and to be respected for what he is.

Assuming that we all are agreed on the importance of the child and the need for educating him, let's think about how children learn.

A child is ready to learn if he is in good health, is reasonably happy at home and with friends, and has arrived at a certain mental maturity. The teacher can then present new ideas.

These new ideas are often taught with the aid of the "frills of education." Using the frills results in quicker, deeper, long-lasting learning. Research proves that there is better learning when frills are used. The training of soldiers during World War II showed that the use of film, map, diagram, model and war game was the only way to teach so much knowledge to so many people.

Frills are called audio-visual aids. These aids, or frills, get attention and interest, get ideas across, and get the ideas across more permanently. This may be a little more understandable if one thinks about pictures in a cookbook or a picture of logging equipment. These are audio-visual aids. The luscious-looking cake or the new log loader gets your attention and interest and puts an idea across and makes it stay in your mind. Making the cake or knowing more about the loader requires reading and arithmetic and perhaps writing as you copy the recipe or send for more information about the equipment.

Using audio-visual aids is not an abandonment of the three R's. Audio-visual aids and the three R's are used together to promote learning.

One type of audio-visual aid is the field trip. A trip to the Vernonia Eagle office gave a lasting impression of the machinery noise, the smell of ink, the big rolling press, the heavy lead used in the linotype.

Other trips brought insights to the children: A postmaster is an honest, trusted person; firemen are volunteers, which means they work without pay; a reservoir provides us with clean water so one should not be tempted to swim in the reservoir; the jail is not a pleasant place; a doctor does not heal, he helps a patient heal himself.

Field trips and other audio-visual aids are good tools for teaching.

Booklet Explains Care Of Metals, Plastics

What's the best way to make a stainless steel sink sparkle? How do you clean a shower curtain? How do you "season" a cast iron griddle?

Answers to these and other questions about metals and plastics are covered in an Oregon State University extension bulletin "Care of Metals and Kitchenware."

Author Bernice Strawn, OSU's home management specialist, offers instructions for cleaning 10 types of plastics commonly used in households and gives information for cleaning most metals, enameled fixtures and glass.

Anyone in Oregon, Washington or Idaho may get a copy of the bulletin free on request at county extension offices.
