Excitement reigned supreme last Thursday night at Evelyn Heath's home when a local bridge group met.

In five tables of bridge, three grand slams were bid and made and two little slams bid and made. None of these were doubled.

Dot Knowlton ended the evening with the unbelievable score of 10,790. She is still carrying her tally around with her.

Ann Kepner had second high and Evelyn Heath had high slam.

Traveler Shares Experiences of 3-Week Mexican Trip

(Editor's Note: The following article was written by Mrs. Luanee Cousins who recently returned from a trip through Mexico. She has shared her trip with others by this means at the request of the editor.)

In Taxco there were many silver shops. The city is on a hill and the streets are paved with

Holly Shipping Tips Outlined

A hormone dip, special box linings and rapid methods of transportation will assure arrival of fresher looking Oregon holly in homes of your East Coast friends and relatives, an Oregon State University study shows.

Holly packed in cartons lined with either florist foil or plastic coated freezer paper retained a fresher appearance than holly packed according to other methods in OSU tests.

County extension agents in three Oregon counties, cooperating with Oregon nurserymen and the OSU Horticulture department, compared various liner wraps according to the amount of berry, leaf and moisture loss on arrival in Beltsville, Md.

They found that holly sent without liners or packed in newsprint dried out, discolored and was unsaleable on arrival when sent by parcel post (10 days travel).

Holly quality improved greatly when sent express (5 days travel), probably because it didn't dry out as much in transit. Holly packed without a liner was still saleable but was low quality; waxed paper or newsprint wrapped holly was acceptable. However, holly rated best when wrapped in freezer or foil wraps.

A hormone dip available at most garden supply stores controls defoliation effectively up to at least 15 days regardless of the shipping method, says A. N. Roberts, horticulturist. Holly may be freshened at its destination if allowed to stand in water.

Couple Attends Dinner At Banks Last Saturday

TIMBER RT. — Mr. and Mrs. Martin Manthey from Beaverton, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Miller from Aloha and Mrs. Maud Williams from Hillsboro spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Shipley and Mike. Mrs. Thelma Vandehey from Banks visited her sister, Mrs. Shipley, Monday.

Mrs. Betty Pollock and Mrs. Rita Shipley went to Portland Tuesday on business.

Mrs. Marion Siedelman and Mrs. Jim Fields visited Mrs. Art Odum Friday.

Mrs. E. M. Carter and her son, Edward Williams from Kelso visited her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wienecke Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Teeling from Portland were Sunday guests of Mrs. Nell Thacker.

cobblestones. One needs good soles and heels on their shoes as the rocks are a little larger than one's fist and the same shape. There is a large cathedral there and it is lighted at night and we were able to enjoy its beauty from our balcony. After Taxco we spent a night at Balneario San Jose de Purua and it defies description by me. A spa with mineral water which are mesa-thermal, carbonaceous, polymetallic, and arsenical; beautiful fountains with pools, four swimming pools, banana groves, beautiful landscaped areas and waterfalls. All this on a mountainside and into a deep valley of the Toluca. It is a city of its own where they grow their own fruits, pineapple, papaya, pomegranates, tangerines, limes, oranges, grapefruit, grapes, etc., raise their own meats, beef, poultry, pork, lamb and goat, produce their milk which they pasteurize and grow their vegetables.

It is located in the Toroscan Indian country and from there we went to Patzaura where we took a boat trip to an island where a group of Toroscan Indian children sang in their native tongue and the fishermen demonstrated the use of the butterfly nets and posed for pictures.

The big market in Guadalajara was interesting but a bit "smelly" with the many foods being cooked and served. It is a picturesque city and one which most tourists visit.

All members of our group liked Mazatlan. The balconies of our hotel looked out over the water and it was easy for those who wished to swim to reach the water. At night I watched the tiny lights of the shrimp boats out at sea. It was quite warm there. The beds are made up with only sheets on them. The restaurants serve delicious fish and sea foods as Mazatlan is a fishing center. Two of us took a delightful little trip in a cab, a two wheeled cab with canopy, drawn by a little horse that clip, clops along the street, never walking, always the same little trotting gait.

The scenery between Mazatlan and Culicán was fascinating—it is agricultural region—fields of cotton, tequila plants, citrus groves, etc. This region extends to and beyond Hermosillo.

From Hermosillo we went to Phoenix, Arizona, where we had our farewell dinner, provided by Greyhound before proceeding home the next day.

Not only do I have wonderful memories of the cities but I thrilled at the sight of the little donkeys loaded so skillfully with corn fodder, the Indians with their serapes and straw hats, the many cattle, crossed with Brahmas, the many cornfields which had been planted as they had been planted for centuries, the women and children doing their laundry in a pond or along a stream, the oxen teams plowing the fields with ancient plows, the adobe homes and villages and many other sights and sounds.

To me the entire 23 days was a dream coming true, all that I had dreamed and much more.
