Past Chiefs Enjoy A Potluck Barbecue

"Aren't we going to the pot luck barbecue? I sure want to go." This was the remark made by one of the husbands that did attend and as last year nine past chiefs and three husbands really enjoyed those luscious steaks prepared by the hostess, Luanne Cousins, and all the good food that was brought by the following:

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hickman, Mr. and Mrs. Justin Folken, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lange, Irma Chance, Faye Davis, Eula Blount, Grayce Bundy and Mathilde Bergerson.

Candidate Talks At Demo Meet

Earl Seawright, Democratic candidate for county judge, congratulated the port district on the excellent work they are doing in encouraging industrial development in Columbia county during an open discussion meeting of the Democratic Central Committee at Clatskanie last week. Seawright emphasized the need for long and short range planning that will be needed by the port, the cities of the county, and especially the county itself, to supplement the port's efforts for industrial growth.

The federal government forecast 10 years ago the industrial growth of the Northwest and Columbia county, Seawright said. It was then that the city of St. Helens, the Port Commission, and school district 502 instigated a land-use study that, properly used, would be of real value as growth came to this area. At that time the county court was asked to participate in this planning but nothing was done according to Seawright. Failure by the county court to participate in this planning has resulted in a lack of development plans and funds for various county commissions, it was pointed out.

Seawright complimented the county granges on their foresight in establishing park sites and planning for needed park areas in the future that will be properly maintained and supervised. The interest and concern of the granges in this area has been a highlight in an otherwise discouraging picture, he stated.

The people of Columbia county were urged by Seawright to make their views known on this subject. He stated that adequate planning for industrial development, and park and recreational facilities is every-

QUESTION: Should a person with only a short period of work under social security apply for benefits?

ANSWER: Unless you are absolutely sure you are not entitled to monthly social security benefits, you should apply for benefits or check with your social security office. Many people in their seventies have qualified for social security benefits with as little as 18 months of work covered by social security.

QUESTION: How soon should I let social security know about a change of address?

ANSWER: As soon as possible. Try to notify the Social Security Administration no later than the 15th of the month before you move. This will make it possible for you to receive your regular monthly check without delay.

QUESTION: I am a widow with three children under 18. If I remarry, will I lose my social security benefits?

ANSWER: Yes. A widow who remarries generally loses all entitlement to payments for herself from deceased husband's account. There are some exceptions, but this is generally the case. However, if her later marriage ends with the death of the husband and she is not entitled to social security payments on his account, she might again become entitled to payments on the first husband's account, providing she still has in her care a child who is entitled to benefits.

Couple Takes Vows At St. Helens Rite

Miss Roberta Ann Smith, daughter of Mrs. Ann Briones, and Harry Zwick of Seattle, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Zwick, were married at St. Helens last week. A small reception was held following the ceremony.

The Public Welfare Question

Do I have to have a license to board children?

If you receive payment for providing care, food and lodging to children who are not related to you, it is necessary that you have a Certificate of Approval from the State Public Welfare Commission according to Oregon law. This requirement protects both you and your foster child. Your county public welfare department will be happy to provide information on requirements for foster homes.

Will the new civil rights law affect public welfare?

Eligibility for financial assistance has always been based on need, not race. However, in many parts of the nation members of minority groups have found it difficult to get jobs or even to obtain the necessary education to prepare for employment. Many of these people become welfare recipients because there has been no other means of obtaining the necessities of life. Civil rights legislation which eliminates job discrimination will enable many of these people to support themselves without welfare help.

I read that welfare recipients have to work for their money. What happens to those who are not able to work?

Only those who are able to work are assigned to work and training programs.

If I get help from public welfare will it hurt my credit rating?

All public welfare information is strictly confidential. Public welfare departments will not inform your creditors that you have applied for assistance. The law permits the public to inspect lists of assistance recipients in the county offices but information obtained in this way may not be used for either commercial or political purposes.

Let's Get Acquainted!

Do you know this man?

Born December 20, 1919 at Hillsboro. Married October 26, 1946 at Vancouver, Washington.

Came to Vernonia that same year. As a father, he claims the distinction of being a foster father, a step father and father of three children of his own.

He is an artist and craftsman in many ways. At the Oregon exposition in 1959, four displays were of his design. He carved the model ship in the Port of Portland display and that boat is now displayed at the Port of Portland. Also, he had a part in the designing and making of the PP&L, PGE and Oregon news displays.

When you go to OMSI building and walk through the heart model, you are seeing more of his work. Also, one rock display at OMSI is his.

He made the relief maps for the Round Butte, Pelton and other dams. The first model of the Portland federal building was built on his kitchen table.

He also has been known to fashion a spring to put a watch in running order.

He is both a stamp and coin collector.

For the company for which he now works, he works in the news room. (Information supplied by J. W. Nichols.)
