Many Visit At Shirley Berg's

MIST — Mrs. Jim Swanson and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Danielson of Apiary were visitors at the Sam Devine home Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Totten and family of Vancouver, Washington and Mrs. Vern Wagner of Newberg were Sunday visitors at the Lloyd Garlock home. Terry returned home with his folks and Mike stayed for a week's visit. Other visitors Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Simmons, Mrs. Simmons Sr., and Albert Anderson of Clatskanie, Mrs. John Crawford and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Garlock. The Lloyd Garlocks talked to Carolyn Sunday and wished her a happy birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Ford and children of Portland visited Monday evening at the Charles Hansen home, enroute home from a vacation in Canada and other places. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Roeser and children of Astoria spent Tuesday evening with the Hansens. Mrs. Marie Murphy and Jim of McMinnville arrived Thursday morning to spend several days with her sister. Sunday, the Norman Hansen family and Mrs. Hansen and guests were at the coast and other places of interest. Mrs. Murphy and Jim remained in Marshland that evening. While they were gone, Mrs. Alden Ashley, Bertie Lou and Mrs. Ashley's mother, Mrs. Bertie Hansen of Longview, called at the Hansen home. They visited Mr. Hansen.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Cox were Forest Grove callers Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Hemeon and family returned the latter part of the week after completing a month's vacation. In all, they traveled 7600 miles from Mist to Boston, Massachusetts and the east coast and back. Enroute home they visited five days at Salmon, Idaho with Mrs. Hemeon's brother. Bud's mother made the trip to Boston with them and will stay in Boston for awhile. The Hemeons and Schlehbers were surprised Monday when a cousin, Mrs. Ed Johnson and Mr. Johnson, of Portland arrived to visit. Mrs. Hemeon states she hadn't seen Mrs. Johnson in about 30 years and really had a lot to catch up on.

The Public Welfare Question

Could I adopt a child without owning my home?

Owning a home is not a requirement for adopting a child. You must have the ability to manage your family budget and have stable employment with enough income to provide the necessities of life for a child without undue hardship for the rest of the family. The place you live in — whether owned or rented — must provide enough space for all members of the family to live in health, safety and with self-respect.

If I contribute to my mother's support will the money be taken out of her assistance grant?

All income available to any assistance recipient, including contributions from relatives must be taken into account in determining the amount of an assistance grant. However, in situations where, because of lack of funds, the agency is not able to pay the full amount of the standard welfare fee for some items, such as medical care, relatives may, if they wish, make up the difference up to 100% of the welfare standard.

Do welfare recipients get any help in budgeting their money?

Yes, when necessary. In general, welfare recipients, like everyone else, have the right to use their money as they see fit. However, when problems arise in money management, caseworkers are available to help the family work out these problems.

Could I get old age assistance and still keep some money to pay for my burial?

Assistance recipients (except for General Assistance) may retain a reserve up to $250 in cash which may be used for burial. In addition, persons 65 may retain life insurance with a face value up to $500 if the beneficiary of the insurance policy agrees to assume all responsibility for burial expenses.

PUBLIC WELFARE QUESTION

(Questions about public welfare which are of general interest are answered in this column as a public service. Help with individual problems is available at your county welfare office.)

My blind brother is trying to build up his business. Must he use all his profit to maintain himself?

A special law permits all employed or self-employed persons to retain all earnings up to $85 plus one-half of all earnings above $85 without affecting their eligibility for assistance. In addition, earnings above these levels may be retained for up to 12 months in connection with a specific plan to become self-supporting if this plan is approved by the County Welfare Department.

What does a county Public Welfare Commission do?

The public welfare commission consists of a group of public-spirited citizens who have an interest in seeing public services performed effectively. These citizens determine the policies of public welfare departments within the framework of state and federal laws, and regulations of the State Public Welfare Commission. All actions of the county welfare department on individual cases rest on the authorization and approval of the county public welfare commission which also makes recommendations to the state commission for changes in state policy or laws and which sets certain standards for its own county. It also revises annual budget estimates and makes recommendations, as well as helping bring about county understanding of public welfare.

What has become of the poor farms we had 20 years ago?

Experience since then has shown us that most people get along better when they are able to be part of their own community than they do when they are grouped together in an institution. When assistance is given to people in their own homes many of them can make an important contribution to community life. In the long-run, the community gets more benefit from the present program for fewer dollars and the people involved are able to maintain their self-respect as participating citizens.

Why is it that juvenile delinquents and criminals often come from welfare families?

Crime, delinquency, disease, school dropouts and many other social ills often accompany poverty. These problems are found in many low-income families not on welfare. This is why public welfare today is emphasizing training and rehabilitation to enable people to find a legitimate means of lifting themselves out of poverty and deprivation and finding a more positive means of realizing their own goals.
