YOUR JOB

(NOTE: This column is written weekly and published by this newspaper as an educational and public service. Informational Representative.)

QUESTION: What is the "waiting week" as specified in the Unemployment Insurance law in Oregon?

ANSWER: When the claimant first reports to the Employment office to file his claim for unemployment insurance benefits, he files his "initial" claim or application. On the second report he files for the first full week of unemployment benefits, which is the week in which the "initial" application was filed. That week is known as the "waiting week" and the claimant is not paid unemployment insurance benefits for that week. Only one waiting week is required during the claimant's benefit year.

QUESTION: How has unemployment been in Oregon so far this year?

ANSWER: Actually, the unemployed have been fewer in Oregon this year than for a number of years. Construction, good crops in most agricultural products, expanded and newly opened plants in the wood products industry have all added to the good economy. In August the number of Oregonians working was the largest ever recorded—778,800, more than 8,300 above the previous record in August 1963. At the same time the seasonally adjusted rate of total unemployment dipped from July's 5.0 percent. The rate of insured unemployment in Oregon was at its lowest level for the first week of October for the past ten years at 1.9 per-

U.S. Infant Death Rate Too High, March of Dimes Physician Says

By VIRGINIA APGAR, M.D.

Director, Division of Congenital Malformations, The National Foundation-March of Dimes

Did you know that 10 nations have a lower infant mortality rate than the United States? That every year we lose about 105,000 babies aged one year or less?

That this tragic and discreditable situation exists despite the fact we have the best trained physicians, the most medical schools, more hospital beds than any other nation, and probably more prenatal clinics than any other country?

How, if at all, can our infant mortality rate be lowered?

In the course of my work with the program of The National Foundation-March of Dimes to eliminate birth defects as a leading cause of infant mortality and disability, I have talked to scores of obstetricians and pediatricians, leaders in public health and other experts to seek answers to the problem of the infant mortality rate in our country. All feel that better prenatal care would help.

Everyone agreed that probably the most blameworthy culprit is a young woman we might call Sally B. She is 20, reasonably pretty, a high school dropout after a year, and she is married to a laborer whose education ceased at age 12. She has had one baby stillborn and two miscarriages, and more such shattering experiences are probably in store for her.

Intimately acquainted with this prototype is Vera R. Keane, now research director at Yale University School of Nursing, New Haven, Conn., and formerly director of parent education, New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center. She has had long experience as a public health nurse, and to me she describes the group to which Sally B. belongs in these terms:

"At any given time in the United States, we estimate that there are some two million women pregnant. Of these, about 500,000 belong to that hardcore, lower socio-economic group who turn a deaf ear to prenatal advice and refuse to attend prenatal clinics because, they say, they don't consider pregnancy as being 'sick.'"

"When you ask these women and girls why they won't go to prenatal clinics in communities where these facilities exist, they say they don't need any advice or, if they do, they can get it from a girl friend or neighbor; or they don't have the time; or they don't have the money for transportation to the clinic and for a babysitter while they're away from home; or even if they are pregnant they're much more concerned about their husband being out of work, or worried about where they are going to get next month's rent or the money for this week's food. They just poohpooh the whole idea of the protective and preventive health service. That's your typical 'Sally B.'"

But let me say to women in early pregnancy that even if they do feel some reluctance about making their first visit to a prenatal clinic we usually find that only about one in five will need to return frequently. Those who are requested to return at close intervals are the high-risk cases where we find such disorders as diabetes, high blood pressure, anemia and obesity. I hasten to add that in these cases there are remedial measures that can be taken.

If our infant mortality rate remains shocking and frightening, that tragedy is no justification for doing nothing to improve it. The time is long overdue for us to roll up our sleeves and get to work. We most certainly can make our prenatal clinics more inviting and less wearing on those expectant mothers who should use them.

to offer to refer you to whatever family planning facility seems appropriate for you. You are not required to accept such referral, even to a family planning facility under the auspices of your own church, but the new policy will make it possible for you to find out what facilities are available in case you should want this information.

Can welfare recipients fill the available farm jobs next year when Mexican workers won't be coming in to do this work?

Unemployed assistance recipients who are able to work are always referred to any available employment, including farm work. However, many assistance recipients are aged or disabled and are not able to do any heavy physical work.

My neighbor doesn't speak English. Is there an interpreter in the office who can help her when she goes to apply for assistance?

It is not possible for public welfare to have interpreters available in each office or all languages. It would be best for your neighbor to ask a relative or a friend who speaks her language to accompany her.

My uncle has $5,000 in the bank but no income except a small social security check. Can he get money from welfare so he won't have to use up his bank account?

Only $250 in cash may be retained by an Old Age Assistance or Aid to the Disabled recipient. A couple may retain $500 in cash, blind persons may retain $500 each. Your uncle would not be eligible for assistance with his living expenses until he had used up his savings down to these levels.

I read that Congress passed a food stamp law. Will this take the place of abundant foods?

Under the new law the Food Stamp program is operating on a permanent basis rather than a pilot basis. As a result of State Public Welfare Commission action in September 1964, the Food Stamp program has been made permanent for Multnomah County where it has been operating on an experimental basis for some time. Other counties may establish Food Stamp programs instead of distributing abundant foods if they wish to do so and if there are sufficient funds available under the Food Stamp Act Appropriation. As of September 30, the deadline for adding new counties to the Food Stamp program for the coming year, no counties except Multnomah had asked for Food Stamp programs.

What good is the abundant food program to people who can only eat certain foods?

If you are eligible to receive abundant foods you can ask for just those items which you feel you can use. Abundant foods include a variety of

Tax Return Aid Offered

A. G. Erickson, district director of the Internal Revenue Service for Oregon, announced today the period for filing 1964 Federal income tax returns will extend from January 4 through April 15. To provide assistance to tax payers, the Portland office, 827 N. E. Oregon Street (Telephone 234-8211), will provide information service Monday through Friday, from January 4 through April 15 during regular office hours, 8:00 a.m. to 4:45 p.m., except Monday, February 22.

Director Erickson stated, "Taxpayers coming in for help will be asked to fill out as much of their returns as possible, and will be given any additional information needed to complete them." He suggested taxpayers telephone for information before going to an Internal Revenue Service office, since essentially the same service is available by telephone as at the offices.

items and most people find that they can make use of at least a few of them.

Does public welfare support fluoridation?

Although any form of preventive medicine may in the long run cut down on public welfare medical costs, the welfare department does not establish explicit policies in these areas. Fluoridation, like other preventive medicine, is primarily a public health matter.

Could the welfare department pay a housekeeper so I won't have to go to a nursing home?

If you are in need of care and are eligible for public assistance, public welfare can provide for housekeeping services if the total cost for the housekeeper and your own needs is not greater than the cost of the care you would require in a nursing home.

I read in the paper that public welfare had two different budgets and one was quite a bit higher than the other. Why is this?

Like other state agencies, public welfare formulates one budget based on the cost of continuing its program unchanged, taking into consideration such variables as population growth, and caseload trends. The larger budget shows the added cost of new or expanded programs recommended by public welfare staff. The final budget that goes to the legislature represents the Governor's recommendation, and contains parts of both proposals.
