

Patient Recuperating At Daughter's Home

MIST—Mrs. Howard Thompson of Clatskanie is with her daughter, Mrs. Norman Hansen and family, after leaving the hospital Saturday. She is able to be around a little with the aid of crutches and is very hopeful of getting back on her feet before too long. Mr. and Mrs. Hansen were in Astoria Saturday on business. Mr. and Mrs. Sulo Sanders and Leslie of Westport visited a short time with the Hansen family Sunday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Willard Garlock were up from Warrenton visiting at the Ray Garlock home during the week. Mrs. Bern Bliss came back Sunday evening to visit at the Garlock home after spending about a week visiting friends and relatives in Washington.

IT'S YOUR LAW

Respect for Law Makes Democracy Live

THE GARDEN HOSE

The Smiths had invited the Jones to their house for a backyard barbecue. As they were going up the front walk to the Smith's house, Mrs. Jones tripped over a garden hose left lying across the sidewalk by the Smiths. In the resulting fall, she was severely injured.

Mrs. Jones sued the Smiths claiming that they were negligent in leaving a garden hose across the walk.

"They invited us to their house," she said. "We were their guests, and they had a duty to see that the premises were safe for our visit."

Is Mrs. Jones correct? Can the Smiths be held responsible for the injuries sustained by Mrs. Jones on their front walk?

No, said the supreme court. As a general rule there is no liability on the part of the host for injury to a person coming on the premises as a guest, unless there is something on the premises which is a concealed danger in the nature of a trap.

The day in question was a Saturday afternoon in July, and the Smiths had been doing some ordinary chores about the yard. The court pointed out that one might well expect to encounter a hose across a sidewalk under such circumstances. In any event, even if the hose across the sidewalk be considered a danger, the Smiths would have no duty to give warning of a condition which should be obvious to a guest.

Mrs. Jones lost the case.

COST OF LAWSUITS

Your state and county government pays for the upkeep of our court system—courtrooms, judges, court officers, and the like. These are what we pay for a peaceful way of settling disputes. Part of this cost comes from fees for filing various papers in a lawsuit.

Some of the costs spent in a lawsuit can be recovered by the successful party from the loser. These are the fees and expenses for: filing papers in court, having papers served, witnesses, jury fees, an expert witness if called by the court, notary fees, and depositions (the sworn record of pre-trial questions and answers from a party or a witness in a case.)

Many costs can't be recovered, such as those for charts, maps, private investigators, expert witnesses, and lawyer fees. There are certain exceptions, such as in divorce, where the court may order the husband to pay these costs as part of the wife's right to have her case fairly presented. Others are where a signer agrees to pay attorney's fees if he is sued on a contract, where a wage earner sues for his wages, and certain claims for damages to person or property.

Because of court costs lawyers

Lambs Benefit By Added Heat

During the first few hours of a lamb's life, the heat supplied by a heat lamp may make the difference between life and death, says Don Coin Walrod, county extension agent. This is particularly true where lambs may be born outside and are moved to a barn as soon as they are found. The shepherd should observe the ewe flock often during adverse weather conditions.

A word of caution on fire prevention. Be sure the heat lamp is a safe distance from bedding, use a porcelain light fixture and do not hang the light by the cord. These lamps should be suspended with a light-weight chain stress "preventive" law by a fair out-of-court settlement wherever possible. Or better yet, by preparing papers and the like beforehand which could forestall litigation.

In probate cases—which deal with estates of deceased persons—the attorney's fees are on a schedule fixed by the legislature, and when approved by the court, they are paid from the estate.

When someone brings a lawsuit from malicious motives and without probably cause, and loses the case, the defendant can recover in the same lawsuit his court costs, but not his attorney's fees. Therefore the law gives him a right to sue for the "malicious" prosecution also to recover the attorney's fees.
