Warrenton Hosts Logger Squad, Visitors Take Home Victory

Warrenton's Warriors hosted the Logger squad Friday night, January 7, only to have the visitors walk away with a victory. The final score was 47-42 in favor of the Vernonia hoopsters with J. Hanson, 17 points, and Fred Smith, 15, leading the attack.

After trailing at the close of the first quarter the Loggers bounced back to head the Warriors at half time, 24-21. Dave Larson sparked the attack by sinking three quick lay-ins near the end of the quarter.

From this point on the Loggers were never behind, although Warrenton once tied the score at 26 all. Vernonia's exceptional defensive play thwarted the Warriors in the hard pressing try for a win. A credit to the defensive play of Jerry Hanson was the fact that L. Gramson, with a 24-point per game average, was held to eight points.

Coach Kronmiller stated that he was pleased with the showing of the team as a whole, and that Jerry Hanson had played an exceptional game throughout. Dave Larson, who stole two passes and drove them in for lay-ins, and was passed another ball stolen by Elton, broke the Warrenton rally with six quick points.

In addition to Hanson and Smith's scoring the following was added to the total: Larson, 8; Elton, 4; J. Curl, 2 and B. Hanson, 1.

In the rebound department, Elton and Curl led the Loggers with 13 and 10, respectively.

Dick Ledgerwood led Warrenton with 17 points.

Saturday night spelled disaster for the Logger quint as they journeyed to Rainier and fell before the attack of the Columbians, 48-49. Vernonia trailed all through the game and was

THE PUBLIC WELFARE ?

(Questions about public welfare which are of general interest can be sent to the Public Welfare Help with individual problems is available at your county welfare office.)

What kind of education and job training can welfare recipients get?

Job training for welfare recipients can be either on-the-job training or formal schooling. On-the-job training plans can be established in public agencies. Welfare recipients can gain experience by working in the public agency for as many hours each month as it would take them to earn their public welfare grant at prevailing wage scales. Plans for formal schooling are worked out on an individual basis according to the needs and aptitudes of the recipient. Plans for training are approved after careful consideration of the merits of the plan by the county welfare department. Certain limits of time and costs are established as the program is not intended to finance college education.

If I got a loan to start a small business, would my welfare check be stopped?

If it was a condition of your loan that it be used only for the purpose stated, the receipt of the loan would not affect your eligibility for public assistance. However, any profits from the business would be deducted from your welfare grant after the required payment on the loan was made.

What do you do about people who refuse to work?

A family will be ineligible for aid to dependent children grant if an adult in the grant family refuses, without good cause, a job or an assignment to work and train. However, people over 65 who qualify for Old Agr Assistance are not required to work even if they are physically capable of doing so. In other categories, decisions are worked out on an individual basis.

I know someone who gets aid to the blind and can see fairly well. Isn't that fraud?

Blindness is defined by law and must be confirmed by a medical examination. Many people who are legally blind have some vision, and no fraud would be involved as long as the recipient met the legal definition of blindness. In cases where the condition is subject to change, re-examination is required periodically.

Tips Given on Mole Trapping

Moles can be controlled, and a good time to do it is in the winter. Trapping and poisoning are both effective when properly used, says Don Coin Walrod, county extension agent.

The scissor's jaw trap is the type recommended and is particularly effective in the garden, lawn and home, and for follow-up trapping in large field poisoning operations. Use the scissor jaw trap in main runways—these runways are usually found between two mole hills. Cut a hole in the ground large enough to barely accommodate the trap. The hole should be cleaned out. Just before placing the trap into the hole, use soil to build a firm plug or dirt mound on the bottom of the runway.

Place the trap so the trigger rests firmly on the plug or dirt mound. The firm plug is needed to help the trigger as the mole passes under it. Insert the trap into the hole and press the trigger pan firmly on the dirt plug with the jaws straddling the runway. Remove the trap safety catch and sift loose dirt onto the set to keep out light. The trap can be working continuously, but should be checked daily, advises Walrod.

Mole bait containing thallium sulphate is an effective poison. To be successful, use this bait only in main runways. These runways are from four to eight inches under the surface of the soil. Use a probe such as a 1/2-inch metal rod to locate the runway. Place a small spoonful of poisonous bait into the runway using the hole made by the probing rod. After the bait is placed, close the hole by pressing your heel against it.

When several mole hills appear on a lawn, place the bait in runways approximately every 10 feet. For large areas such as fields and pastures, poisonous baits should be used at 20-30 foot intervals in the main runways. Application of bait at this rate will kill a high percentage of moles.

Wait approximately 72 hours after the first application and then knock down all the old mole hills. It takes about 72 hours for thallium sulphate to be lethal to moles. Any activity after that time indicates that some moles have survived or that traveling moles have again invaded the area. In this case, it is necessary to rebait. If new mole hills appear after the second baiting, a third baiting may be necessary, or the operator may wish to use traps to catch the last few moles.

Moles require large quantities of food and spend perhaps half of their lives searching for something to eat. Since moles travel back and forth in their runways searching for food, they are vulnerable to properly used traps or poisonous baits.

A newly revised OSU extension bulletin on mole control is available from extension offices, indicates the agent.
