Oregon Shows Death Increase

Half of Oregon's counties have higher traffic death tolls this year than last year, shoving the state's death count for the first six months to 340—an increase of 18 percent over the same period last year.

The count also is running nearly eight percent above 1969, the year Oregon recorded its all-time high toll of 713, according to the Oregon Motor Vehicles Division.

The counties recording increases so far this year are Columbia, Crook, Curry, Deschutes, Gilliam, Hood River, Jackson, Klamath, Lake, Lane, Lincoln, Linn, Malheur, Multnomah, Polk, Umatilla, Wasco and Yamhill.

Four eastern Oregon counties—Grant, Sherman, Wallowa and Wheeler—were death free during the first half of the year.

June traffic produced 77 deaths, the highest toll for that month ever recorded in Oregon and 30 more deaths than reported for June last year. Only two days went death free during the month. The division says at least 28 percent of the June victims had seat belts available at the time of the crash but were not using them.

The deaths of four bicycle riders during June brought the number of bicyclists killed so far this year to seven compared with two at the same time last year and 12 for the entire year.

Columbia County showed an increase of one for the first six months, up from 4 to 5.

Recreation Area to Be Dedicated July 15

The Oregon Dunes National Recreation Area will be dedicated Saturday, July 15, by Forest Service Chief John R. McGuire, Washington, D.C.

The public is invited to the 11 a.m. ceremony at Eel Creek Campground 10 miles south of Reedsport on Highway 101.

Scheduled to be present for the dedication are three members of Congress who sponsored the legislation to give the coastal strip national status. They are Rep. John Dellenback and Senators Mark Hatfield and Bob Packwood. Gov. Tom McCall also is scheduled to participate.

The 32,237-acre area, mostly Siuslaw National Forest land, was designated March 24 by President Nixon, who said "the dunes are as beautiful as they are unique—a mix of desolate whiteness with sparkling blue lakes and bright green foliage. Now this beauty may be preserved for all Americans for years to come."
