PRIMARY WING at Washington Grade School features candles this year, including bulletin board display with quote by Shakespeare. The primary students made the candles from paper tubes and decorated the hallway.

Retirement of Sheehan Noted

Raymond Sheehan, vice president-general manager for General Telephone Company of the Northwest operations in Oregon has announced his retirement early in 1973. His replacement, effective December 1, 1972, is J.E. Sherar, service director for the company.

Sheehan and his wife, Evelyn, a prominent Northwest artist, will actively pursue their many art-related interests after Ray's retirement.

In his new role Jay Sherar will be responsible for overall service operations, service planning, maintenance, construction and installation and business activities for the company's operations in Oregon, Northern California and Southwestern Washington.

Sherar began his career in 1947 as a lineman. He has held a variety of management and executive positions in Washington, Oregon and Idaho. Prior to becoming service director he was the general manager for General Telephone's Eastern Area headquartered in Coeur d'Alene from 1966 to 1971.
