Jamboree Committee To Receive Themes

The Jamboree committee met Wednesday, October 10, at the West Oregon Electric meeting room. Most of the discussion was on the theme selection, the Jamboree court, and the carnival.

The committee has decided to start receiving themes for Jamboree now. Anyone who would like to submit a name is requested to send or give it to Irma Fisher at Fisher's Electric. Themes will be turned over to the Jamboree committee.

Wallie Lee of Lee Shows, Tacoma, Washington, attended the meeting and advised the committee he would bring seven rides for Jamboree weekend. He will be notified shortly on the committee's decision.

The princess committee made a report on the revised rules governing the court. It was moved to accept these revised rules. Motion carried.

To decorate the town there will be a window contest for the merchants and a flag contest to decorate the streets. Anyone may enter a flag for display and judging. For more information contact Isabel Anderegg.

The next meeting will be announced in the Vernonia Eagle. Those interested are invited to attend.

MR. AND MRS. R. L. (Red) Beighley of 258 D Street admire the large economy-size cabbage raised in their home garden. The 33-pound Dutch Flathead cabbage, on display at Fisher's Electric, is only one of several giants grown by them this year. They made 20-gallons of sauerkraut using just seven of the homegrown mammoths for the project. Also on display are several larger-than-normal carrots their garden produced.

Transportation Greatest Need For Seniors

Needs are being identified and priorities are being established for the Senior Citizens of Columbia County according to Robert Hunt, Chairman of the Task Force on Aging for Columbia County.

Hunt along with various sub-committees and representatives of the Clackamas-Columbia-Washington Counties' Agency on Aging have tentatively identified transportation as the single greatest need for Senior Citizens within the County.

"Without adequate transportation, senior citizens are unable to avail themselves to the other services that are available or may be needed within the county," Hunt said.

The Task Force was formed to research and identify needs of the Senior Citizens along with determining what resources presently exist and what resources for the elderly may be needed. According to Hunt it is important that all available local resources are utilized before establishing new resources.

"It is equally important that existing resources realize that Senior Citizens have needs and problems that are just as realistic as other residents of the county," Hunt said.

"Senior Citizens are the most neglected and forgotten group in the nation today," Hunt said. He went on to explain that the Senior Citizens of today were the active and contributing taxpayers of yesterday who cannot be ignored by the active citizens of today.

"Local officials have an obligation to recognize not only the contributions the Senior Citizens have made to the county but to assure the Senior Citizens that the County has not forgotten them," Hunt said.

In addition to the transportation committee headed by Dorothy Churchill, other committee chairmen include: Norm Barmer, Employment, Manpower and Income; Amanda J. Kammer, Alternatives to Institutionalization and Legal Aid; Doris Diman, Retirement Roles and Activities; Bob Stevens, Health and Nutrition; and Nick Federici, Housing. Terrie Wetle is the representative planner from CRAG.

Interested persons are invited to a meeting scheduled for Friday, October 19 at 1:30 p.m. at the County Courthouse.
