Anglers Need Tags

Young salmon and steelhead anglers (those less than 14 years of age) are reminded that when they apply for a salmon-steelhead tag this year it will cost them $1. Previously this document has been issued free of charge to juveniles. The 1973 Legislature changed this and effective January 1 any person, regardless of age, must pay the $1 fee. Thus all tag holders share in helping to pay the cost of maintaining these highly valuable anadromous fish resources.

Witnesses

"Pay back, therefore, Caesar's things to Caesar, but God's things to God," was Jesus' reply when asked by the religious leaders of his day what his stand was toward the government and paying taxes to it. This week's speaker, Salvatore Scotto, will use this and many other scriptures to explain what a Christian's position is today in relation to the governments under which they live. He will follow the theme, "The Christian's Obligation to the State."

Immediately following the public talk, the congregation will discuss how the prophecies in the third chapter of Habakkuk apply to the great war of Har-magedon spoken of in Revelation 16:14-16. The discussion will be based on an article in the December 15 issue of the Watchtower entitled "Exulting in Jehovah Despite Hardships of Har-Magedon."

All interested persons are encouraged to attend. For more information concerning Jehovah's Witnesses, please contact Jim Milton, 429-6975.

OMSI Slates Glassblower

A master glassblower is an artist with glass rods and tubing, whether his end product is a vase, a flower, or an exotic piece of research equipment. Master glassblower Gunther Weiss has been practicing his difficult and practical art for many years, and will be demonstrating his skill to visitors at the Oregon Museum of Science and Industry on Saturday and Sunday, January 19th and 20th.

In continuous demonstrations from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. in OMSI's Main Auditorium, Mr. Weiss will demonstrate how clear glass is transformed from a solid to a very pliable form, and then back to solid works of art again, strictly by the proper application of heat and pressure. Many of the artistic and decorative items he will fashion, such as animals, birds, vases, and flowers, will be sold to viewers. Weiss will also discuss the fascinating history and importance of his scientific art as he works.

Gunther Weiss began his career at age 14 as an apprentice glassblower in his native Germany just after World War II. He has studied all over the world, and came to Oregon to make his permanent home in 1961. In his own company, Scientific Glass Blowing, Inc., Weiss produces complicated and elaborated specialized glassware for
