Log Truckers Name Officers

New state officers of the 800 member, Oregon Log Truckers Association, were named at the organization's convention in conjunction with the Western Regional Log Truckers Expo at the Oregon State Fairgrounds in Salem, August 9-11.

Francis Eddy, an independent log trucker from Willamina, is the new president of the association. He replaces Chuck Huntington, of Eugene, who was honored for his service to the association. Before his election to the presidency, Eddy served as First Vice President of the organization.

Other new state officers installed at the meeting are: Vice President, Bob Slagle, Grants Pass; Secretary, Derald Jenkins, Springfield; and Treasurer, Chuck Sheridan.

For Second Vice President of the OLTA the new officers are: Member Services, Lynn Abraham, Philomath; Tariff Bureau Committee, Wilson Boyer, Coos Bay; Governmental Affairs, Bob Coblentz, Willamina; Safety, Frank Berns, Roseburg, and Insurance, Gene Mellor, Roseburg.

Balloting for the position of Second Vice President, Environmental Quality ended in a tie between Larry Haley, Myrtle Point and Marion Bryant, La Grande.

Among other items discussed at the meeting was the increase costs of operating a log truck in Oregon. Results of a study done by the OLTA show that overall costs have risen 23.9 percent in the past few months.

Board of Commissioners

(Memorandum Minutes)

Civil Service. Hollinger stated he had been included for coverage because while notice in writing had not been received that the man was qualified, verbal confirmation by telephone had been received. He added the consultant was in Europe and would not return until later in the month and there was no one else that could do the required paper work in his absence. As a result, he felt the employee should not be deprived of coverage through no fault of his own. Based upon Hollinger's explanation, and

The Columbia County Board of Commissioners met in scheduled session August 21 with Chairman Fred Foshaug presiding. Commissioners Minkoff and Ahlborn, legal counsel John F. Hunnicutt, and secretary Gloria Salvey (deputy clerk) present.

Commissioner Ahlborn moved and Commissioner Minkoff seconded the minutes of the meeting of August 14 be approved. Motion carried.

Miscellaneous claims were approved.

Sam Hollinger, roadmaster, met with the board to discuss road matters. The board questioned the inclusion on the hospital report of an employee who had not yet been certified by

Cone Picking Demand Rises

Oregonians looking for a profitable outing in the woods may find cone picking to their liking.

Cone buyers will soon be setting up stations to secure a seed crop for regeneration of fir and pine species, according to Donald Brewer, Oregon State University Extension seed certification specialist.

Generally poor seed production since 1966 has resulted in a particularly good demand for Douglas-fir seeds. Brewer indicates this year's crop is also limited, which could mean better prices for pickers.

The average price paid for cones in past years was $3.50 per bushel, but Brewer says that price varies depending on demand.

Regeneration of harvested or burned forests requires seeds from areas at the same altitude with similar physical characteristics, so cone buyers set up stations in various locations around the state.

Pickers are required to register with a buyer to receive picking instructions and necessary equipment, and be assigned to specific harvest areas.

Before leaving the woods, pickers must tag each bag with the location, elevation, and kind of cone, and sign the tag.

Since buyers require certain seed standards, OSU Extension seed certification specialists will be on hand to inspect picking as to location and elevation. A general standard has been at least five seeds in each half of the cone, but pickers should check this number with their buyers first, Brewer said.

Cone buyers usually represent either tree seed companies, private timber companies, or government agencies responsible for reseeded burned or harvested forests.

Location of buyers stations and information on local cone crops can usually be obtained around September 1 from the State Department of Forestry, U.S. Forest Service, Bureau of Land Management District offices, or county Extension offices.

Put Campfires Out In Woods

Campfires that are supposedly "OUT" in the minds of campers often start smoldering again and spread to cause a wild forest fire. Putting a campfire out is simple, but exact:

1. Puddle it with water, soaking the earth up to four inches below the hot bed of the fire. This makes the fire spot a mud pie.
2. File successive layers of mud on the fire spot. The solid used in this mixture must be completely mud.
3. Dig into the spot with the hands. If there is no heat, your fire spot is safe. If there is heat, repeat the procedure. Your hands may get a little dirty but remember your green forest may turn black. Dry soil piled on the fire, as many forest visitors do, creates a dutch oven which will break into open flames days afterwards further confirmation by Commissioner Foshaug the board approved the inclusion in the report.

Loren Gillespie, fire chief from Rainier, and Richard Risener, principal of Goble School, met with the board to inquire about load limits established on bridges in the Rainier Rural Fire Protection area. Gillespie stated the fire district has two new trucks coming in May, which would weigh 16 tons each, and was especially concerned about the bridges on Price and Parkdale Roads. Risener expressed concern regarding weights of school buses, which exceeded the load limits established on many of the bridges. They inquired whether the county would issue such permits, but upon advice of John Hunnicutt, declined to do so because of the fact the county would then be assuming liability for any accidents which might occur. Hollinger indicated that within the next week or two, he could put a temporary bent under bridges on the Price and Parkdale Roads, which would decrease the possibility of the bridges going down under excess weights, but advised he could not remove the weight limit signs.

The board discussed with Hollinger the request of Mrs. Reel, of Green Meadows Trailer Court in Scappoose, to prepare estimates of cost to repair the Miller Road. Because of the fact this road has not been accepted by the county for maintenance, and the numerous problems which could be encountered if the county were to contract the repair work, Hollinger was advised to inform Mrs. Reel to have a private contractor do the road improvements she wants.

Hollinger discussed with Hunnicutt the agreement to be prepared to divert excess water from the J.P. West Road near Scappoose, across the property of Enoch Gross.

W. A. Palmateer, general manager of Oregon Bridge Engineering Company, met with the board to present Agreements for engineering work to be done for bridge replacement on FAS project, Beaver Creek Bridge No. 062. Commissioner Minkoff moved and Commissioner Ahlborn seconded the Agreement be signed, then forwarded to the State Highway Department for approval. Motion carried.

Sitting of the Dog Control Board, a claim submitted by Mrs. Arnold Sattler, for two lambs allegedly killed by dogs, in the amount of $60, was denied, based on the report of the Dog Control Officer, which indicated he felt the killing was done by predators rather than dogs.

Commissioner Minkoff moved and Commissioner Ahlborn seconded the following orders be signed:

No. 86-74, directing Art McKay the county weed inspector, to destroy noxious weeds on property owned by Don and Gladys Hooper.

No. 87-74, directing the county weed inspector to destroy noxious weeds on property owned by Jack and Jeanne Sherer;

No. 89-74, directing the county weed inspector to destroy noxious weeds on property owned by Mr. R.W. Teschner and H. Keith Teschner;

No. 90-74, directing the county weed inspector to destroy noxious weeds on property owned by Mrs. R.W. Teschner and John Teschner.

Motion carried.

Request for Cancellation of Taxes was approved for Francis L. and Ralph R. Smith, in the sum of $136.20, which was incorrectly paid.

Agreements were signed with the State Highway Commission for replacement of the roadway on Scappoose-Vernonia Road, FAS 609, and restoration of roadway on the Fern Hill Road, FAS 567.
