Columbia County Herald Emerges As Largest County Weekly Paper

Sel-Mor Inc., publishers of the Scappoose Spotlight and Ver-nonia Eagle, have announced plans for a merged publication effective September 26, 1974. The new joint publication, known as the Columbia County Herald, will be the largest circulation weekly newspaper in Columbia County, with the only larger circulation paper being the St. Helens bi-weekly paper.

Jerry Moore, President of Sel-Mor, in announcing the merger,

Recall Election Scheduled

notes that the paper will remain a Thursday publication with street sales available on Wednesday afternoon, and the for-mat of the paper being a two section paper each week. The two section "Heraid" will offer a relating process of the front page to bring each area reader "fresh" news from their locale. In the Scappoose area, the front page will be called the Scappeose Spotlight edition and basically will contain Scappoose

For Tuesday, October 1

With the Recall Election scheduled to take place Tuesday, October 1, the Columbia County Clerk, Roy Nelson, has issued a list of polling places for the convenience of voters.

Nelson said, "We are com-bining many of the precincts around the county to cut costs on this special election," adding that those who will be away from the area for any reason, are reminded that if they need an absentee ballot, they should apply for one as soon as feasible. Dahlgren Appointed To Governor's Comm

Eric Dahlgren, candidate for Columbia County Commissioner and currently a member of the Port of St. Helens, was named to the Governor's Commission on Youth this week. He will be representing Columbia County on this committee. Dahlgren will become the youngest member on the commission. The commission is set up as a committee where the problems of youth, (ie. drugs, school and the role of education, legal problems and job openings) are studied. What the commission then does is narrow the problems and try to solve one or two of them by using agencies to spearhead the change. The commission members themselves range from a bank vice-president to social worker; high school teacher to government personnel.

Eric Dahlgren believes the major problems facing youth in Columbia County is good job openings and lack of youth activity centers, plus growing pressures from the Metro as far as drugs and crime are con-

New Members Appointed To Committee

The Cemetery Committee met Wednesday, September 11 to make future plans for the Ver-nonia Cemetery. Immediate need is the tiling of the new addition in the southeast area. As soon as tiling is completed, the seeding of grass will be done so that the section will be usable by spring. Filling in of additional soil will be necessary in the lower area

Ralph Bergerson, chairman of the committee, appointed Ora Bolmeier to take the place of her late husband, Wesley, on the committee. She also accepted the duties of the secretary upon the resignation of Evelyn Heath who has served on the committee since its inception in 1967. Louise Hamnett was chosen to take Mrs. Heath's place. Other members of the committee are Reatha Horn and Bert Brunsman. Jim Fuiten, Paul Weidman and Ed Miller are consultants who meet with the committee when necessary.

Contributions to the Cemetery Beautification fund in memory of Wesley Bolmeier and Dane Brady were much appreciated by the committee. Considerable planting of trees and shrubs will be done next spring which will conform to the overall plans of the original landscape design. The committee will be in charge of all plantings in the cemetery.

RICK RINKS and Jerry Rümbolz were blue ribbon winners at the Oregon State Fair FFA competition. Both also took red

City and Columbia County news while in the Nehalem Valley, the front page will be designated the Vernonia Eagle edition and news will pertain primarily to that area and to county news.

The balance of the front section will be similar to the current Scappoose Spotlight with some notable editorial changes including an open or editorial forum type page with broader county coverage than in the past. The second section, called Nehalem Valley News section will be a similar format to the present Vernonia Eagle with an additional front page of Vernonia area news.

There will be no change in personnel at the present time, according to Moore. B Wayne Rhodes will continue to serve as editor and advertising manager for the Nehalem Valley News section and Moore will be editor of the overall publication as well as advertising director. Employees of the Scappoose office include Dee Moore and Laurel Mollenhour plus part time as-sistance from Ron Till and aiding Mrs. Rhoades in Vernonia will be Blanche Laughlin and Jenelle Wiggins while the back shop operation will still be in the hands of Marv Kamholz and Mel Schawb. As is currently the case, the paper will be prepared cam-era ready in the Vernonia plant and then taken to Hillsboro on Tuesday evening for printing. Deadlines for both news and advertising will be Monday night at 5 p.m. but the earlier articles are received, the more guaran-tee of their publication for that

The other significant change will take place effective with the Thursday October 3 issue. One that day single copy price for the Columbia County Herald will be increased from 10 cents to 15 cents. Moore notes that this is being done in an attempt to keep yearly subscription rates as low as possible. Therefore, yearly subscribers in the county will be able to enjoy the current $4 per year rate, at least until the next postal increase.

All clubs, organizations, committees etc., are invited to contact either the Scappoose office at 543-6387 or Vernonia 429-3372 to submit news articles. Stories also can be mailed or dropped off at either office providing they meet the Monday night deadline.

In conclusion Moore states that he feels this new concept will offer readers a much better newspaper plus it is also in keeping with the trend of progress in Columbia County.

Clinic Closed Sept. 30

Columbia County Health conducts tuberculin testing clinics every Monday each month from 3 to 5 p.m., with reading of the tests on Wednesday of the same week during the same hours. It is necessary that the September 30 clinics be cancelled. These services will resume on October 7.

Counseling Service Set

Columbia County Juvenile Counselor Rich Wood will be in Vernonia each Tuesday morning from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. at the West Oregon Electric building conference beginning Tuesday, September 24 to offer counseling

Wood, who has been with the juvenile department for the past three years, will be available to aid people who are having problems with their children and who feel they need someone to talk with about the trouble. The rear door of West Oregon will be open for the convenience of those wishing to confer with Wood.

The Columbia County Juvenile Department is endeavoring to offer a counseling service in the Vernonia area and hope that those who feel they have problems or that problems may be developing, will take advantage of these free sessions.

4-H Slates Conference

Oregon 4-H members will go through a series of exercises designed to teach them how community planning and development processes work at the 1974 4-H Community Pride Conference next week at Sunriver Stevely, Columbia county extension agent

The conference opens Sunday afternoon, September 22, and continues until Tuesday afternoon. Community Pride is a pro-gram supported by Standard Oil of California to encourage young people to get involved in making their communities better places in which to live and to make a

The program has been planned with a committee of 4-H members representing other young people from throughout the state points out George Wyatt, Oregon State University extension youth and community development specialist.

The conference will center on two sets of activities which will simulate real situations, Wyatt explains. The first will be a series of "games" in which 4-H members must make decisions about the impact of community development, land use planning and pollution. The second will be a series of "situations" in which the young people try to de-termine how to achieve a certain goal in their community.

Assisting with the activities will be OSU extension specialists and agents as well as city and county planners from Central Oregon and Bend Mayor Art

Another highlight of the con-ference will be the presentation of awards for outstanding 4-H Community Pride activities in the state during the past year.

Oregon 4-H members helping plan the conference are Doug Avery, Lakeview; Valerie Kluth Portland; Dano Ybarra, Bend; JoDee Boucock, Yoncalla, and Christy Huston, Junction City.

City Council Okay's Loading Zone On Jefferson Avenue

The Vernonia City Council met in regular session Monday, September 16 with the meeting called to order by Mayor Sherman Fisher. Present were coun-cilmen Bud Atkins, Todd Bowerman, Ed Miller and Lucille

Following the reading and ap-proval of the minutes, business from the floor was heard. Ruby Elliott appeared to repeat her request for a sewer hookup delay but the council voted to give her a 45 day variance after explaining that waiting could bring about unknown complications or costs to her but by hooking up now, an extension of pipe to the nes house (when constructed) would be all that was necessary at a later time providing it was not used for two

Harry Coleman again asked about his drainage problem but was informed there was noth-ing the city could do for him. Next to be heard was Claude

Veal who presented his problems with the East Vernonia Sewer District including the fact that no provision was made by the engineers for a hookup to his business and that, since the engineer had taken so long in studying the problem, no financing was now available for the sewer under the Bancroft bonding. Engineers are working on it according to Roy Sanders and the council who were unaware of the problem, asked that Zen Dutson of Robert Meyer Engineers, be notified of the financing problem to see if Veal couldn't be helped due to the fact that he had lost the opportunity for Bancrofting because of this situation. The $2 sewer use charge will be delayed on Veal's

Workshop Set On Retarded

'Volunteers are Advocates' is the theme of the third annual workshop for volunteers and professionals who work for and on behalf of mentally retarded children and adults.

The day long workshop will be Tuesday, October 1, at the Child Development and Rehabilitation Center at the University of Oregon Medical School, 708 SW Gaines Road, Portland. Registration is at 9 a.m.; the fee is $1.50 per person or 75 cents per person in a group. Participants should bring their own lunches. Of particular interest to persons always volunteering, persons wishing to volunteer and professional staff serving the retarded, the session is sponsored by The Volunteer Bureau of Greater Portland and the Associations for Retarded Citizens in Multnomah, Clackamas and Washington Counties.

Participating in the conference are Dr. Albert Browder, associate professor of pediatrics at the U of O Medical School; Jack Hegrenes, associate pro-fessor of Crippled Childrens' Division at the Medical School; Dennis Heath, Fairview Hospital field representative from Marion County; Helen Howells, consumer advocate and Washington County ARC member; Gretchen Yost, director of Edwards Activity Center; Sue Tingley, Portland Park Bureau specialized recreation director; and the service coordinators for the developmentally disabled from Multnomah, Claskamas, Washington and Columbia Counties. Ethelyn Gardner, Jim Wall, Susan Welsh and Jan Marshall.

Quilt Fair Slated

The third annual Vernonia Quilt Fair will be held during the week of October 5-13 at the American Legion Hall from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Many heirloom guilts will be on display as well as a large group of other beautiful quilts offered for sale.

The Quilt Fair is sponsored by the ladies of St. Mary's Parish with admission scheduled at $1 with refreshments available. Proceeds go toward the building fund for a new church of the shop until the problem is corrected.

Veal also asked for relief of parking problems caused pa-trons of the Timbernook, on behalf of himself and the residents of Birch and Mist Drive. According to Veal the cars are a nuisance, blocking driveways to private property and the pas-sengers of the vehicles leave debris scattered around which creates a health and safety problem. Police are to check into the matter.

Chuck Hendryx, representing Vernonia Sentry, requested a loading zone on Jefferson St. for trucks loading bottles from their bottle storage area. Council agreed to this.

Committee reports were next heard with Atkins reporting that new cement floor had been finished in the fire hall.

Next on the agenda was communications with a letter from Father Gussin of St. Mary's Catholic Church submitting an offer of $30 for the city's old recording machine. Council refused the offer since city prop-erty must be put up for bid when Unfinished business was heard next with the city recorder submitting a list of the East Vernonia Sewer District residents who have not made their sewer assessment payments. Letters are to be sent to these, including a seven percent interest charge added, due and payable by September 30, 1974 with the notation that if payment isn't made, legal action will be in-

Further discussion ensued

about outside water hookups with council deciding to refuse all future requests following the reading of the engineer's report that the city is already short by 170,000 gallons of the three day storage amount set by state standards.

New business was then heard with council voting to approve payment on the fire truck which was delivered last week. An advertisement for bids for 400 feet of 21/2 inch fire hose is to be placed in the local paper with bids to be opened at 8 p.m. Monday, October, 21. Council agreed to send chief of police Jack Cunningham and

Tom Bruce, representing the fire department, to the Disaster Preparedness meeting in Hillsboro September 17. A further statement on modular homes vs mobile homes was clarified that, whereas a mobile home could not be tampered with to meet city building codes, a modular home could and that building inspector John Lentz would have to approve modular Council voted to approve the appointment of Ora Bolmeier and Louise Hamnett to the Cemetery Board. A further request from the board, on increasing the price of lots, was taked under advisement. As the final act of the evening before payment of bills, council voted to have attorney Allan Coon draw up a resolution for an ambulance sinking fund. The meeting then adjourned at 9:25 p.m. with the next council meeting slated for Monday, October 7 in the city hall at 8 p.m.
