One of the most hideous crimes committed for some time was committed last Saturday morning in Los Angeles when the Times building was blown to atoms by dynamite placed in an alley way between the two sections of the buildings. Twenty lives were lost and a great many people injured, all because of labor troubles. One would imagine that the United States was patterning after Russia.

The First Annual Fair of Malheur County and Nyssa took all honors, even at the baby show.
Are we proud of the community that showed up so excellently?
"Well I should smile." It is natural that one loves his or her own town even if it does not fully warrant it but when it takes sweepstakes at the County Fair and all the first prizes, one is justified in showing what would otherwise seem unpardonable pride. We are in a country that has just begun to develop and one that shows every indication of becoming the leading fruit country of the West, therefore the World. Nyssa people went about the grounds with all the pomp and parade they could command and the ribbons they wore said: "Nyssa! See our exhibit! and indeed the exhibit well merited their pride.

It is not often that Nyssa can put it over the other towns of this county because it is small and bashful and dreads making a show of herself but on this occasion it certainly landed it over her sister towns and forgot her bashfulness and even was bold enough to boast of her many resources.

In the olden times, in the times of Zerkas, bodies of water were spanned by a succession of boats connected together to form a passageway across. This took many boats and careful engineering.
Not so today! Bridges are built anywhere at any time and of unknown strength. And this is done at a comparatively small figure, and the benefit is hard to estimate.
In the olden times it was a matter of great effort and the course of a long long time, now it is a matter of small effort, (only willingness to do things) and a short time. What about the Nyssa bridge and the efforts being put forth?

If we choose to be true, let us first be true to ourselves, our country, our town, and thus it must follow, we will be true to our fellowmen.

If an angel should come from heaven to find a perfect man he would doubtless be disappointed.
But he would probably find the nearest approach to it in some humble man "doing good by stealth" and giving freely of himself for the well being of others.
Like that of the man in the parable who succored the wounded traveler it would be a life of unselfish service.—Nampa Leader Herald.

New England at one time was the head of the United States, it led in all things. It was the true seat of government at one time, it dictated to the other states and enjoyed the center of public life.
Today she is beginning to realize that she let slide from her hands these things that she used so unsparingly. She has not fully realized that she no longer can sway the political opinions, dictate as to what should be done. She does not realize that her best offsprings has gone west and is going out for what New England once stood for but has forgotten in her industrial development.

The westerner no longer goes east to get his ideas on this or that question but says what he thinks and cares not for the east as it is as distant to him and his ideas as is Europe's Monarchies.
The western individual no longer asks his eastern friend or brother what he should do in the next election or who his vote should be cast for. The west was the infant reared by New England and it promises to be even greater, than its foster.
