There are a great many places and to have extra heat. In the builder's Remedies for Seasickness.

Among curious remedies for sea sickness is that which is popular among the mariners in the Levant—the daily swallowing of iron rust, which is obtained by scraping it off the anchor or anchor chain. But this is only part of the necessary treat ment, for a small pouch containing roasted salt and flowers of thyme must be tied upon the abdomen as firmly as can be borne—this being considered to counteract the effects of the iron disturbance caused by the rolling of the vessel.

MAN WAS TOO ENTHUSIASTIC

Noted Horse Trader Would Not Lie About Horse's Good Traits—Merely Suppressed Truth.

Hank Dobbs was noted as an "hon est" horse trader. He would not lie about a horse. He would merely sup press the truth. Incidentally, he al ways beat the customer who dealt with him. The way he could slur over the defects and buzz about the vir tues of an animal amounted to genius.

Once Hank was trying to sell a neighbor a horse that had an eye which was nearly sightless. The neigh bor knew Hank would not lie outright to him, so he questioned the horse trader as to the various points of the brute.

"How about his eyesight? Can he see out of both eyes?"

"Sure," said Hank, "he's got good eyes." Here he leaned forward, his eyes fairly scintillating with sup pressed honesty. "One eye is particu larly good."

Hank's enthusiasm for the truth had carried him too far. The deal was off.

Happy Thought.
"Your story is good," said the pub lisher to the author who had called to learn his fate, "but there is one thing about it that I can't under stand."

"What's that?" queried the author.
"You have the climax in the mid dle chapter instead of the last," said the publisher. "Why is that?"

"Oh," answered the author, "that is a little scheme of mine to keep wom en from knowing how the story is going to turn out by reading the last chapter first."

who likewise deals in French brandy."
