PRICE AND QUALITY

Are the first things that one thinks of when buying the necessities of shelter and food for oneself. Those are the things that you must take into consideration when buying the supplies for the carrying on of your work on the ranch or any where else you might be working. There is nothing that tells the quality quicker than harness and so you should be certain of the quality before you buy. You can buy harness at very low figures but it will not be long until you will have to buy again. Study the price in conjunction with the quality and come to a shop that you can feel sure will sell you the best and the best only. A stitch in time will save you money so let us repair your old harness as well as your old shoes. A new machine is to do all kinds of sewing.

THE POUNDING.

Last Friday evening the home of Rev. and Mrs. Bush was unceremoniously entered by an army of invaders to the number of forty, and when the Bushes recovered from the first onslaught they discovered with great surprise that their invaders were among Nyssa's best folks. The army seemed to be armed with various kinds of missiles and disguised bombs but as none of the concealed dangers seem to explode, with a single exception, but the exception carried with it odor sufficient for an arsenal of nitroglycerine, it was concluded that this must be a peaceful invasion after all, and everybody settled down to enjoy an evening of fun. And after two hours of solid enjoyment, the army retired in good order and the host and hostess were left to discover for themselves the nature of the mysterious missiles, and then it was found out this was a Pounding Social. It is the opinion of the pastor that he stood such a pounding wonderfully well and wishes well indeed to all the Pounders.
