HIS BILL AWFUL LARGE

She—Your lawyer in your recent suit made some pretty severe charges against the other fellow, didn't he?
He—Yes, but that wasn't a marker
to the way he charged me.

KERNELS

When a rogue kisses you, count your teeth.

The longest stayer doesn't always
win the girl.

The man who despises little things,
seldom is a rich.

Envy is merely awkward homage
paid to inferiority.

When summer passes, the cold-dicker comes. He is the heat-dick-er ever.

Helping a Sportman.

"Dis am de place, suh. Yo' goes to de top ob de staila, tuhns to de left
an' knocks free times."
"What do you mean, caddy? What are you steering me up against?"
"Pohah, suh. Didn' yo' see me ef dey was any game heah'bouts, suh?"

An Old Delusion.

Father of the Fair One—How can you possibly think of marrying my daughter? You say that by the strictest economy you can save only $10 a month!

Poor but Worthy Post—Oh, yes, but if we both save, it will be $20!—Maggendorfer Blaetter.

THE GENTLE CYNIC

A shady past seldom has a silver-
lined future.

The bachelor who sympathizes with
a fair widow is lost.

Foots jump at conclusions, but the
wise run the other way.

He is an ungrateful man who lives
beyond his wife's means.

Where there's a will there's a fighting chance for the lawyers.

A good many decided blondes got
the decision from a druggist.

Many a man with a way of his own
has a wife who outweighs him.

Even women who lack the sense of humor want to be jollied all the time.

Most of the free advice is handed out by people who want to get rid of it.

It sometimes happens that a pessimist is a married man who can't forget it.

There is said to be happiness among some savage tribes where money is unknown.

Suppose the prodigal son had come home to find that his family had turned vegetarians?

There is only one thing that travels faster than bad news, and that is the reputation of being an easy mark.

A man is never old enough to know enough not to marry a girl who is young enough to be his granddaughter.

WHEN OLD AGE IS A CURSE

When it has lost self-respect.

When they have no aim in life.

When hope and cheer have fled.

When ambition and aspiration are dead.

When the imagination is foul and
the thought impure.

When young people cannot live with
it with any comfort.

When they do not stand for anything in their community.

When they have lost the zest for life, the desire for usefulness.

When it has developed only vulgarity, coarseness and animality.

When their neighbors would not consider their departure any loss.

When all the youthful fires have gone out and only embers remain.

When the individual has not learned
the art of self-control and patience.

When the individual has been burned out by the fires of dissipation.

When the sap of life has gone and the individual is like a fruitless
orange.

When all the reserves of energy and
force have been prematurely exhausted by a vicious life.

When it has left the individual ugly,
disagreeable, touchy, critical,
uncharitable, unkind.

When the old have not won the respect, the confidence and the admiration of relatives and those nearest to them.

When all that is good, sweet and
noble has evaporated and life is empty.
—Orison Swett Marden, in Success
Magazine.

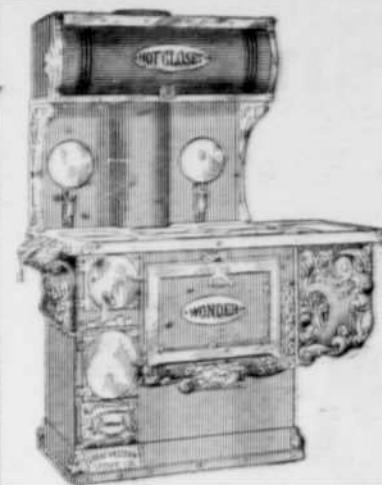

An Unnatural Father.

"Eccentric is he?"
"Yes."
"In what way?"
"Why, he wanted to flip pennies
with his wife to decide which of them
should have the privilege of teaching
the little boy his prayers."
