PRUSSIAN BLUSTER

That German braggart who presumed to tell a war correspondent on the west front that Prussia will bend to the knee in submission before we have time to mobilize our fighting forces, and that the bulk of the $7,000,000,000 bond issue will be paid in indemnities to the central powers, sadly discounts the temper of America today. He has yet to learn that, though slow to anger, the great republic strikes with the fury of avenging righteousness when it is fully aroused. Moreover, if he takes the time to scan history he will learn that this country is not in the habit of paying indemnities. It was just a century ago that an intrepid American, speaking for his country on European soil, delivered the ultimatum: "Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute;" and so far as the record goes, Americans have held that principle inviolable ever since.

When Bryan prophesied that in the event this country was assailed by a foreign foe "a million men would spring to arms in a single night," the Prussians sensed the folly of that assurance, perhaps, more readily than we. For they knew then—that we know now—that, without previous military training and the necessary equipment, such a host of volunteer defenders would be a poor match against a veteran modern army of even the smallest proportions. But even so, our self-opinionated enemies are due to find sorry consolation in the end. Although America is moving slowly, she is gaining momentum every minute, and when "Der Tag" finally arrives there will be a mighty reckoning for the blustering Prussian and all his kind. In the meantime, such allusions as he chooses to indulge in simply serve to make this country fighting-mad, and even this has its advantages.—Goodwin's Weekly.

ME AND GOTT

Of this poetry Irvin Cobb, writing in the Saturday Evening Post, says: "That more or less ribald jingle called 'Me and Gott,' aimed at the Kaiser and frequently repeated in this country a few years before, had in the face of what we now behold, altogether lost the force of its one-time humorous application. As we appraised the prevalent sentiment, it had, in the sober, serious consciousness of otherwise sane men and women, become the truth, and less than truth."

(Mr. Cobb was describing his experiences while beheld the battle lines in Germany, and meeting with all classes of German people.)

Gott, Gott, dear Gott, attention please,
Your handkerchief is in the line here;
Und has a vord or two to say
Into your private ear;
So turn away all odors now,
Und listen vell to me,
For vat I say concerns me much—
Meinself and Sherman.

You know, dear Gott, I was your vriend
Und from my hour of birth,
I quietly let you rule der heffen
Vile I rule o'er der earth;
Und ven I told mein soldiers
Of bygone battle days,
I gladly split der glory,
Und gif you haf der praise.

In efferay vat I tried to prove
Mein heart to you was drue;
Und you claimed mein honest share
In great deeds vat ve do;
You could not haf a better vriend
In sky, or land, or sea,
Den Kaiser Wilhelm, Number Two,
Der Lord of Sherman.

So vat I say, dear Gott, is dis:
Dot ve must still be vriends,
Und you should help me send mein foe
To meet der bitter ends.
If you, dear Gott, vill dis me do
I'll nodding ask again.
Und You and me vill badners be Fore effermore Amen!

But listen, Gott, it must be quick
Your help to me you send
Or else I haf to stop attack
Und simply lay defend;
So four und twenty hours I gif
To make der allies run,
Und put me safe into my place—
Der middle of der sun.

If you do dis, I'll do my part,
I'll tell der world der fact;
But if You don't den I must tink
It is a hostile act.
Den vat once I vill declare,
Und in mine anger rise,
Und send my Zeppelin ships to vage
A fight up in der skies.

Dis ultimatum now, dear Gott,
Is one of many more;
Mein mind is settled up to clean
Der whole world off der floor.
Because you was mein bruder.
An extra chance is giften.
So help me vance, or else I'll be
Der Emperor of Heffen.
