POT VS. KETTLE.

President Wilson seems to have stirred up a hornet's nest when he appealed to the voters to return a democratic congress at the coming election. The republicans are highly indignant and are assailing him vigorously for his "partisanship." Without considering the merits of the case, it seems to be a case of the pot calling the kettle black. There might be an honest difference of opinion as to whether or not the president was justified in making his appeal, but there is little doubt but that a republican would have taken the same course. It's "practical politics." Roosevelt, who is one of the president's severest critics, took identically the same attitude at the close of the Spanish-American war, and other republican leaders are on record to the same effect. In condemning President Wilson they are condemning themselves.

Unconditional surrender is the price of peace.

The watch on the Rhine seems to be losing time.

It's not Germany's to offer but to receive terms of peace.

Are the Russians also learning about the perfidy of Lenin and Trotsky.

Metz is supposed to be well sealed but the Xanks are expert can openers.

The one good thing about serving the devil is you are dead sure to get your wages.

Strictly speaking there appears to be but one essential industry, and that is winning the war.

The Kaiser is said to be ill. All we're hoping is that he'll not be permitted to die a "natural death."

The saloon business must be in a desperate plight when the brewers begin to go into the newspaper business.

The premier of France says that Admiral von Hinz is a liar. Sure. That is why he was appointed German minister.

The Kaiser's eyesight is getting weak says a news item. Well, he may not be able to see the Stars and Stripes, but he'll hear 'em wave.

Provost Marshall General Crowder has decreed that marriage after August 5 last will not gain exemption. Sort of defining that love's labor lost propensities.

Press comment concerning the report that the Germans have decided to make a stand all seem to convey the idea that the "stand" is merely a preliminary running jump.

Mamie—Oh, Mable, what do you think? My income tax is more than my allowance. Mable—That's all right, dear. You can put the deficit into War Savings Stamps, you know.

A Missouri woman heard a report from France to the effect that her husband was in the trenches as an acting major. "That's very nice," she remarked, "but let him try acting like a major around the house."

See that women accomplish more work on the farms than men because they don't stop to smoke, chew or talk politics. And don't suppose they so often wander over to the corner of the field where the dam John of water is kept in the shade.

Attorney General Brown, who recently returned to Salem from Burns, Harney county, where a new complaint was filed against the Pacific Livestock company, reports that three motions made by attorneys for the company were overruled by Judge Dalton Biggs.

George Barke was a business visitor in Boise today.

Dairy Commissioner Sees Encouraging Signs.

J. D. Mickle, State Dairy and Food Commissioner, stated recently that the dairy situation, in spite of high prices of feed and scarcity of labor, is not all gloom. Reports have come to him from various parts of the state showing that the housekeepers are beginning to see that they must pay more for milk than they did a few years ago. The dairymen are beginning to take heart, too, in some instances and are looking to the future when the cow of today will be worth much more money alive than she would now, slaughtered. And that future isn't so far off if the dairymen only continue to have courage and patience.

The wise man and the one who is far-seeing, is keeping his herds intact. True, he won't keep the old boarder who would just eat the food and bring no returns, but he is holding his good stock. The sensible housewife, too, must know a man can't feed and care for cows, keep a first class dairy, and provide clean bottles and well paid delivermen without some expense. The Oregon Dairy Council is doing much to get the situation straightened out. The exhibit at the state fair, the splendid cooperation of the Food Administration, the public schools, Oregon Agricultural College and the Bureau of Health, all help the educational work and are part of the great task of "keeping the home fires burning," which task includes the preservation of essential home industries and the health of the nation.

A farmer may slaughter his dairy herd in three hours but he could not replace it in three years.
