How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"After the birth of each child I had displacement and was so weak I couldn't do anything. I found a book about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound so I thought I would try it, and after taking it I soon felt better. That was fifteen years ago and I have felt well ever since except that I had a slight attack of trouble some time ago and took a more of your Compound and was all right again. I always recommend your medicine and you may publish my testimonial for the benefit of other women."—Mrs. JULES BERO, Jr., Box 50, Casso, Wis.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, takes no narcotics or harmful drugs, today holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills in this country, and thousands of voluntary testimonials prove this fact.

"I have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham, for advice. Your letter will be answered and answered by a name, and held in strict confidence."

BELGIUM SKETCHES

The Land of the Living and Dead

By Katharine Eggleston Roberts.

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

The old man sank upon a stump before the door of the abri and rested his gray, stubbled chin on the handle of his pick. Wearily he gazed across the desolate land of destruction. His bent shoulders drooped beneath the blue mock. "Sometimes it just seems impossible, Marthe." He turned to the woman in the doorway. "You can't grow garden in these wet shell-holes. Some of us tried to turn more ground today, but every time we swung a pick, up came a skull or a piece of a shoe, or something. It doesn't seem right."

Marthe's knotted fingers twisted at her apron. "No; but it's all we have, Jan. We can't waste all West Flanders, and—well, after all, it's home."

"Yes, yes," he sighed; "we've come back to the same place, but it isn't home any more. Look at those bare trees. They lift their broken arms to the sky and beg for pity, but they'll never live. And those skulls—they haunt me. What is the use? Always a struggle. The dead cannot live again, and we live on a land of death."

He kicked off his wooden sabots and followed his wife through the doorway into the one room that served for parlor, bedroom and kitchen.

Marthe bent over the sheet-iron stove and stirred the soup in a battered kettle. "I scoured up that empty shell you found yesterday. It will do for a coffee-pot. Try to get another. To use the same one for everything is hard."

She sighed. "I do wish we had just a few of the old kitchen things. But I suppose some German woman is using my copper kettles and spoons now."

Jan laughed bitterly, as he settled down by the table. "Judging by what they took from Belgium, I picture Germany as a land paved with copper kettles, carpeted with mattresses and festooned with brass door-knobs. Oh, what's the use, Marthe? What's the use of trying to live like this? An old abri for a house, because there's nothing with which to build. We make our coffee in the shell of a spent box. Our furniture, everything is makeshift. Life's nothing but a makeshift."

"Why do we cling to it? And the children that people are trying to raise out here! They see only desolation; their toys are broken guns and rusty bayonets. What kind of men and women will they be? And still we go on working here, because we've no where else to go, and we think we have to live. His gray head sank in his hands."

Marthe placed the pot of soup on the table and gave him a wooden spoon. "That's what Louisa was saying this evening. That's the way everybody feels when the dark comes on."

Slowly the night mist crept over No Man's Land and shrouded the stark, gray trees. One by one shapes began to rise and wander over the pitted ground. They gathered into groups and the murmur of their voices was like wind across the fields.

Said one: "I thought it hard to die out here, but when I see these people working, straining to make their homes, I think it must be harder still to live."

"My family has returned," another spoke. "I lived here once. It seems so long ago. But when I came back here to fight, my house was all destroyed, my people gone. And then I fell there, in my own front yard—that shell-hole, see it, where the poppies grow? My little girl came there to pick some flowers this afternoon. I kissed her hand; she laughed, and thought a poppy tickled her."

"It must be nearly time," another said. "The lights are out. The people are asleep."

A bugle whispered somewhere in the dark. The shapes fell into ranks; the ghostly army marched. Before the homes the spirits took their posts and waited for the zero hour to come. From far they saw the menace creeping up—vaguely, until the moon broke through the mist and showed it grim and hideous—the army of Despair and faithless Doubt, that sought to drive the people from the land.

The siege was hard, but through the fog, blue night the shapes stood firm till, just before the dawn, the hour of full strength came. Then with a rush the living spirits fought, and put the armies of Despair and Doubt to flight.

The old man stood before the door of the abri and watched the morning turn from rose to gold. "Marthe," he cried, "I was foolish last night. It must have been that I was tired. What better gift can we have than the land where our sons have fought? What an inspiration for our homes! There's no such thing as despair, Marthe. I was wrong, very wrong last night. Today I see only hope in the sky."

And the living spirits of No Man's Land smiled in their hard-won sleep.

Good Prospects for Belgium.

While Belgium still has many hard problems to solve before restoration can be regarded as complete, it is the opinion of many observers that she will be among the first of the belligerents to recover from the war.

Women with Backache

Anacortes, Wash.:—"I was troubled with displacement for a long time, causing backache and those heavy bearing pains, and my blood was in bad condition. I had no appetite and was generally run-down. I used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in connection with his 'Pleasant Pellets' and was completely restored to health. I always recommend Dr. Pierce's medicines to all my friends."

CONSTIPATION AND BOWEL TROUBLE

Everett, Wash.:—"I had constipation extremely bad, and had tried different things but got little help. I remembered that my grandmother always used Dr. Pierce's medicines and always vowed that there was nothing like them, so I decided to try the 'Pleasant Pellets' for my bowel trouble. I did so with wonderful results. Am never without them now."

FARM STOCK

SCRUBS BEING CLEANED OUT

West Virginia Stockmen Making Vigorous Effort to Drive Out All Scrub Bulls.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

West Virginia—largely regarded as a mineral-producing state—is on the war-path to increase beef cattle production and its output of dairy products by eradicating scrub bulls, which are primary offenders against profitable and progressive live stock husbandry. Within a few months parts of West Virginia where the campaign is most active expect to round out a clean-up which will eliminate the scrub bulls and leave the purebreds as monarchs of all they survey. The case of Roane county, W. Va., is an example of what West Virginia stockmen accomplish when they go over the top. The live stock specialists of the State agricultural college, the county agent and officers of the Roane county farm bureau have solidly backed up the scrub sire clean-up.

"Not a single man turned us down," remarked the live stock specialist in telling how the campaign to oust the scrubs was conducted.

"The first of the year our local stockmen made a declaration of independence against scrub bulls, and work was begun promptly in taking a thorough bull census. This investigation of sire ancestry showed that there were 200 bulls in the county, of which 102 were misfit grades and scrubs, while 98 were registered pure-breds. There were 57 registered Herefords, 28 registered Angus, and 13 registered Shorthorns. Fortunately, the army of 102 grades and scrubs was not as formidable as it looked on the paper, because 60 of these low grade sires were yearlings. Furthermore, the census showed that there were only 30 men who actually made a practice of keeping a scrub bull."

By correspondence and personal contact with farmers the state live stock agent and the county agent waged the battle. These men toured the county day after day visiting the scrub bull owners, holding meetings, and requesting influential farmers to assist in eradicating the scrub sires into the live stock scrap heap. In the main the scrub bull owners, once they learned the purpose of the campaign, and once they appreciated the benefits which would result if they substituted purebred sires for the mongrels, were glad to dispose of their inferior herd-heads. Detailed figures showing the increased value of calves sired by purebreds over calves of scrub parentage were particularly convincing in gaining converts. Most of the scrub bull owners were prompt in admitting the error of their live-stock raising ways.

The Roane county banks have aided the movement to replace poor bulls with good ones. Every bank in the county has offered to lend money at 5 per cent to farmers for the purpose of purchasing pure-bred sires as substitutes for their scrubs.

HANDLE SHEEP WITH PROFIT

Good Drainage, Pasture, Some Shelter and an Interested Attendant Are Important.

The requirements of a farm where sheep can be handled with profit are good drainage, plenty of fresh pasture, land that will produce clover, alfalfa, cowpeas, or soy beans; a good water supply, fences that will keep sheep out of growing crops and furnish two or three fields for frequent change of pasture, a shelter that will protect the flock from cold rains, winds and storms, and an attendant who can give the flock interested and intelligent care.

SWINE CONSUMED MUCH FEED

Devoured More Grain Than Cattle Last Year, Being Fed 50.3 Per Cent of Corn.

Swine consumed more grain than cattle last year in the United States, being fed 50.3 per cent of the corn, 10.5 per cent of the oats, 60 per cent of the barley, 29.1 per cent of the wheat and 41.5 per cent of the mill feeds fed to all farm animals.

INDIGESTION Caused by Acid-Stomach

Millions of people—in fact about 9 out of 10—suffer more or less from indigestion, acute or chronic. Nearly every case is caused by Acid-Stomach.

There are other stomach disorders which also are sure signs of Acid-Stomach—bloating, heartburn, flat after eating, food repelling, sour, gassy stomach. There are many ailments which, while they do not cause much distress in the stomach, are, nevertheless, traceable to an acid-stomach. Among these are nervousness, biliousness, cirrhosis of the liver, rheumatism, impoverished blood, weakness, insomnia, melancholia and a long train of physical and mental miseries that keep the victims in miserable health year after year.

The right thing to do is to attack these ailments at their source—get rid of the acid-stomach. A wonderful modern remedy called EATONIC now makes it easy to do this.

One of hundreds of thousands of grateful users of EATONIC writes: "I have been troubled with indigestion for about nine years and have spent quite a sum for medicine, but without relief. After using EATONIC for a few days the gas and pain in my bowels disappeared. EATONIC is just the remedy I needed."

We have thousands of letters telling of these marvelous benefits. Try EATONIC and you, too, will be just as enthusiastic in its praise.
