Political Announcement

Subject to the result of the Primary Election to be held May 21, 1920, I hereby announce my candidacy for the Republican Nomination for State Senator from the twenty-second senatorial district composed of Grant, Harney and Malheur counties, State of Oregon.

If nominated and elected I will, during my term of office, endeavor to act with prudence and care in the discharge of my duties, without fear or favor and for the greatest good to the greatest number.

FOR JOINT SENATOR

I seek the republican nomination for joint senator for the twenty-second Senatorial District at the coming primaries.

If nominated and elected I promise to the District an honest service and will take my oath of office unperturbed to any person or interest.

I am a liberal and not a reactionary or radical; and especially so as to public expenditures. Economy should mean thriftiness. Public expenditures demand reasonable promise of material and social benefit. Irrigation and drainage under special assessments; good roads; protection of grazing lands and of the public range for the good of the livestock interest as a whole; betterment of mail service; improvement of facilities of branch line railroads; and among the important local needs, roads and postal service in country districts are the only visible returns from taxation, and the burden of taxation should be fairly equalized through these means.

On the foregoing statement I ask the support of the republican voters.

For Assessor.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for assessor on the Republican ticket. Being a resident of Malheur county for 14 years and a taxpayer, I consider the office of assessor one of the important offices of the county.

If elected as your assessor it will be my endeavor to place conservative values upon taxable property of the county, so apportioned that each class of property will pay its just proportion of the taxes.

I have no radical notions relative to assessment, or the performance of the duties of the office, but believe the work of the office should be done on a business basis, having in mind economy and fairness to all classes.

Yours very truly,
H. L. POORMAN,
A fair, conservative valuation of all classes of property.

MODERN BARN FOR DAIRY HERD

Building is Weather-Tight and Well Ventilated.

PROVIDES AMPLE SUNSHINE

Structure 36 by 116 Feet Accommodates 42 Milkers, Their Calves and Winter's Supply of Feed for Animals.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF CHARGE on all subjects pertaining to the act of building work on the farm, for readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the best authority on all these subjects. Send all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1271 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Conservation of labor on the farm is one of the modern farmer's greatest problems. Farm labor has followed the labor upward in cost, and a majority of farmers are having considerable difficulty in getting sufficient help at the present high wages.

The very nature of dairy farming makes it especially difficult for the farmer to get the help he needs. Caring for the herd work that is done in the early morning and in the evening, and the average of the modern farm helper is a long hours required make necessary that those in the dairy industry use all the labor-saving methods that the prosperous dairy farmer can devise.

Most of the work on the dairy farm is performed in the barn. Cons

Recently modern barns are planned and equipped so as to make the work easy. Overhead carriers transport feed to the mangers, and carry the litter; individual drinkin bowls, one for each two stalls, day with the work of watering the animals. Concrete floors, with gutters at the rear of each stall, provide means of cleaning the barn by water under pressure.

Couple these conveniences with milking machines, and more than half the labor formerly required to take care of the dairy cows and their products is eliminated.

Experienced farm building architects have learned many things about planning dairy barns during the last few years, and the dairyman who builds from these carefully drawn plans gets not only a place in which his work can be done efficiently, but gets a winter home for his herd that keeps them warm, healthy and productive. These are advantages that appeal to the progressive business farmer, for in the end, they mean decreased costs of production and increased profits.

In the accompanying illustration I show a modern dairy barn of good size and the silo, which is a most valuable feed reservoir. This barn I call is known as a "cambrel roof" barn, of plank frame construction. The barn sits on a concrete foundation, the walls of which form the dairy stable. It is 36 feet wide and 116 feet long and provides stalls for 42 milkers, pens for their calves and box stalls for the bull, if the owner has a sire for his herd. Above the stable is mow space for sufficient roughage to carry this number of animals through the winter, while the silo provided storage for the feed that the animals need to continue a maximum production of milk through the cold months.

This is a weather-tight, well-ventilated structure. The stable floor will be noticed is well lighted by the almost continuous row of windows in the side walls. On the roof are ventilators, which are connected with duct-air shafts in the side walls and which draw the impure air out of the stable.

How the four blocks of stalls are arranged and the location of the pens for the calves are shown on the floor plan that accompanies the exterior view. The stalls all face a feeding alley extending through the center of the barn. At the rear of the stalls
