Sanramento, Calif.—"For years I was great sufferer. I had indigestion very badly and it seemed that there was no help for me as I had tried so many, many different remedies without getting any help. Finally, I tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it cured me. I took only two bottles."

AFTER INFLUENZA Heart and Circulation Bad

Baker City, Oregon—"I was taken with influenza January 4th and also had a nervous breakdown. My stomach was so bad I did not retain any food for three or four weeks and I was troubled with gas and sourness. I doctored with my favorite doctors and a Chiropactor who said my nerves were so badly damaged that I was on the verge of hysteria. My heart was bad and circulation so bad that my limbs were almost paralyzed. One day I sent for a copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, which I read and decided to make a trial of Dr. Pierce's medicines. At that time I was only able to stay up a few minutes at a time. After taking two bottles I was able to be on my feet all day. I am now able to eat anything without discomfort and never have the dryness in my mouth in the morning nor any bowel trouble. The 'Pleasant Pellets' and the 'Medical Discovery' according to directions, and the salt baths as directed in the 'Medical Adviser' were all I used. I walk 18 or 19 blocks at a time now and feel no ill effects. "Will always recommend Dr. Pierce's remedies."—Mrs. Wm. HOGGARD, 2630 Church St.

The liver is the regulator of health. If the liver is active and well, good health and happiness prevail; but once you allow your liver to get torpid and sluggish, life becomes a misery. LIFT OFF CORNS!

Drop Freezone on a touchy corn, then lift that corn off with fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic! No humbug! A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation. Freezone is the sensational discovery of a Cincinnati genius. It is wonderful.—Adv.

The AMERICAN LEGION

ALONG THE LINE OF MARCH WITH THE NATIONAL SERVICE MEN

(Copy for This Department Supplied by National Headquarters of the American Legion)

TELLS OF LEGION'S PROGRESS

National Commander D'Olier Makes Clear Wonderful Work Accomplished in Only One Year.

Addressing a large audience of members of the American Legion and their friends, in Indianapolis recently, Franklin D'Olier, National commander of the American Legion, gave the following explanation of the organization and purposes of the legion.

It was only a little over a year ago, in France, that all were asking what kind of a veterans' organization we should have, corresponding to the G. A. R. and the Confederate Veterans.

We had all seen the wonderful spirit of those in the service and we thought it would be more than unfortunate if that spirit were allowed to die out. It, therefore, was decided to form a great veterans' organization to which every person would be eligible who was in service, regardless of whether he were an officer or enlisted man, and whether he served in this country or France.

The movement was started on the fifteenth of March, last year, only a year ago. In a year's time from that small beginning it has become an organization with an active organization in every state of the Union, with some 8,500 posts and a membership well over a million.

Why is it that the American Legion in such a short time has grown so rapidly? The reason is simply this: That it was formed for the purpose of keeping alive that spirit of service which we all know about. And that spirit of service is service to our country and service to our comrades.

When we were over there, we saw ourselves the radical tendencies in France. We feared from officers coming from England of the radical tendencies in England, and we heard there was some concern in this country as to what might happen when over four million men were demobilized. We made up our minds the first service we should render to our country as civilians would be to see to it that this government, this country that we were protecting against the enemy, we would protect against the foes within.

You have heard a great deal about the stand of the American Legion for law and order. That stand for law and order has done more for our country than most of us realize, and that I was talking a short time ago to a member of a foreign embassy and he was discussing the American Legion, and he said: "Do you realize most of the disorder and lawlessness in our country is caused by ex-service men, whereas in your country you have your ex-service men putting down lawlessness and disorder?"

I was talking in Washington in the office of the military intelligence of the war department which is connected with the attorney general's office, and they both told me that the greatest central factor in curbing the activities of the reds and the radicals who would overturn our government by force was the American Legion. Those who would overturn our government by force know they can only do so by force and the only great group of citizens who recognize fully the power of force are the ex-service men who were fighting force with force. And when they appreciated the fact that there were 8,500 posts throughout the country and not a locality of any size, but that had an American Legion post, and that it was a rallying point around which the ex-service men can gather in case of lawlessness, and that through the legion all service men would stop the attempts of the radicals—that has turned the tide and made an improvement since last summer.

Let me give you an illustration of the soundness of their judgment. When the steel strike began in a town in Ohio, the posts called a meeting and they offered their services to the mayor. The mayor immediately swore in about two hundred, one hundred he held in reserve and the other hundred he put patrolling the residence section. The next day the labor union called a meeting for the purpose of denouncing the legion for strike breaking. The head of the American Legion post happened to be a union man and he went to the meeting and he explained just exactly what they were doing, that they were taking no part whatever in the controversy and were simply interested in the protection of their homes and those of the union workers.

"You are loyal patriotic American citizens. So are we. We are interested in the same things, and therefore, this meeting which you have called for the purpose of denouncing the American Legion when you understand what we are trying to do, to protect your homes from disorders, for which you will not be responsible—we are trying to protect your homes as well as our own." As a result of this very frank statement by the post commander the meeting of organized labor approved the action of the legion, and there was no disorder whatever in that community. This is a small thing and yet it shows just what the American Legion is trying to do. You need have no fear about the stand of the American Legion for law and order. That is one point upon which every member of the American Legion is pledged, and is one thing on which we agree unconditionally, the maintenance of law and order in this country, and in that way we hope to serve our country. In addition we are going to serve our comrades through mutual helpfulness. We will see that the dependents of those who made the supreme sacrifice are taken care of—that those disabled physically are properly cared for. Unfortunately, although a year had elapsed since the signing of the armistice, congress had not done what it should have done for the disabled men. The American Legion called a meeting in Washington last December, and explained what they thought was fair treatment to the disabled men, that they might not be objects of charity of a private character, and legislation which we considered Monday morning was actually passed by both houses by Saturday afternoon, because what the American Legion asked was fair and just, and congress knew it had the support of the entire country. And as a result a man can now live on the compensation he receives from his government where he has become physically disabled. We are now asking congress to do something for those of our comrades handicapped financially because of their service in the army or navy. We have been criticized for doing this on the basis that we were putting a price on our patriotism, due to the fact that anyone making that statement does not appreciate the situation. I understand it is a historical fact that George Washington, the father of our country, received a grant of several thousand acres of land from this country, in recognition of his service during the revolution. No one has ever criticized the father of our country as having put a price on his patriotism. Referring to a recent illustration, when this country appreciated what Admiral Dewey had done, by popular subscription they presented him with a house, and no one ever said that Admiral Dewey had put a price on his patriotism. The ex-service men in what they are asking for beneficial legislation is that this country shall merely help them overcome the disadvantages incidental to their military and naval service. We have suggested a four-fold optional plan, covering land settlement, home aid, vocational training, and, for those who are not able to avail themselves of any one of those three, an adjustment in their compensation based on length of service. The American Legion every time it refers to this legislation has asked congress to make it as liberal as is consistent with the welfare of the country, and no one is in position to take exception to a statement like that. The American Legion knows that while we were in France our strength in the face of the enemy was not the strength of the two million men in France, or the strength of the two million men in the states. But it was the strength of the hundred million Americans back of those four million of us in service. We were the spear point; the hundred million patriotic Americans back of us were the shaft and the strength. The American Legion realizes that its future usefulness for good in this country will depend on the support and approval we get from the hundred million other Americans, and we know we could do nothing without your support, and you may rest assured in all our acts we shall see to it that we keep constantly in mind the one hundred million other Americans who are just as patriotic and just as loyal as we are. Sherman Was Wrong. The night the armistice was signed was a wild one in Paris. All restrictions were off. Every one was happy and saluted every one else French fashion as they met on the boulevards. All American soldiers were kissed to their hearts' content. Buttons and overseas caps were stolen by the souveniring mademoiselles. Along toward midnight up the Boulevard des Italiens staggered a big black colored boy. His coat was open to the breeze, all his buttons gone, and his head bare. Evidently his cap had also gone to swell some one's collection. As he turned one corner, two chic mademoiselles grabbed him. One kissed him on one cheek and one on the other. It was too much for the darkey. Throwing both arms in the air, he cried fervently: "O Lord! what Miesch Sherman said about war's a lie! Dis sho' must be hobben!"

URIC ACID IN MEAT CLOGS THE KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness. Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot hurt, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

Willing to Risk It.

One of the recent recruits to the army, a raw-boned Arkansan, was undergoing his examination by a lieutenant on the insignia worn by officers of various grades. "What do two silver bars mean?" queried the lieutenant. "Cap'n."

"One gold bar?" "Second lieutenant."

"Silver eagle?" "The rookie scratched his head. "Well, I ain't right sure about that one," he confessed, "but I reckon I'd take a chance and salute him, anyhow."—The Home Sector.

Making the Grade.

While on a motoring trip through southern Indiana we came to a steep hill. The driver put on all the power he could, but it was impossible to climb such a hill. In despair our driver walked to a house atop the hill to see if he could get help. In a few minutes he returned smiling and said the man at the house had advised him to turn the car around and back up. We all laughed, but were soon turned around and slowly backing up the hill. We were about half way up when we saw another machine coming, and as soon as it reached the foot of the hill it turned around and began backing up. When we reached the top the man at the house greeted us and remarked that all cars had to take that hill backward.—Chicago Tribune.

Widely Divergent Interests.

Willis—I suppose the strike in your town is a purely local affair. Gillis—Not in the least. The works are owned by Boston parties, the manager is from Chicago, the workmen came from Seattle, the labor organizer hails from New York, the strike-breakers were imported from Alabama, and the troops were sent by the governor. Our only local interest is ducking bricks.—Judge.

Playing Safe.

Mr. Hardface—No, dear! I can't kiss you here; it's too tight. Miss Manchaser—But you kissed me on this very spot last night under the electric light. Mr. Hardface—True, but this is daylight and someone might get a snapshot of me with a concealed camera.

Plenty of Goat Milk in Germany.

The only item of live stock in Germany which increased during the war is—goats! Germany today has 3,000,000 goats, 10 per cent more than in 1914. Goat milk is being very largely used as a completely satisfactory substitute for cows' milk.—Omaha Bee.

To know how to wait is the great secret of success.—De Maistre.
