Grandma had just arrived on a visit and to take part in celebrating young Bobbie's birthday on the morrow.

After supper, Bobbie started to fidget around grandma's chair. To the surprise of everyone present, he said:

"Grandma, which is the right side of you? Mother said if I'm a good boy and keep on the right side of you, you might buy me a bicycle."

DAIRY

BUILDING FOR CALF IS BIG ESSENTIAL

Economical commercial dairying demands that the dairy calves be raised by hand rather than by nursing their mother. This fact makes it necessary to provide a place to keep the young calves while being fed milk, say Prof. J. P. LaMaster, chief of the dairy division, Clemson college, who suggests that the essentials for such quarters are: (1) that they can be easily cleaned; (2) provided with an abundance of sunlight; (3) properly drained, so as to prevent any surface water from entering, or from becoming damp from any cause; and (4) an arrangement which will permit the feeding and care of the calves with the least amount of labor in quarters that give the calves enough room.

Calves raised on skim milk in practically every case develop the habit of sucking one another's ears, navels, and udders immediately after being fed milk. This habit often results in the udders being misshapen, or entirely blind in one or more quarters when the heifer comes in milk. If this habit was limited to the period just after feeding milk, the difficulty could be overcome by keeping the calves in stanchions for 30 minutes or more after each feeding; but during the day, when the young calves become hungry, they will start sucking again.

To prevent this trouble each calf should have a small pen of its own. This is not as hard to provide as might seem. A long pen six or seven feet wide can be divided into pens by placing gates across at proper distances, depending on the number of calves on hand and the space available. To make it easy to get the calves in and out of the pens and to clean the pens, these gates may be fitted with a cord in the center which passes over a small pulley overhead, and with a weight attached on the other end heavy enough to balance the gate. This will allow the gate to be raised overhead out of the way when not needed. The gate should be fitted into grooves at each end formed by using a 2 by 4-inch upright and 1 by 3-inch slats nailed on each side to form the slot. Such an arrangement is inexpensive and makes a safe and convenient pen for young calves.

"War Map" Shows Extent of Bovine Tuberculosis

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Proceeding on the principle that one can fight an enemy best if he knows the enemy's position and strength, the United States Department of Agriculture has issued a map-poster showing the extent of bovine tuberculosis in the country. The map is the central feature, but the poster also contains explanatory matter and figures showing the degree of infection in various parts of the country. Six different intensities of shading enable any person to see how the county in which he lives compares with others in his state and in other states with respect to the prevalence of cattle tuberculosis.

An encouraging feature of the nationwide campaign to eradicate the disease is the conspicuous appearance on the map of "modified accredited areas." These appear as white spots against tinted and red backgrounds and represent the numerous counties which have reduced tuberculous infection among cattle to less than half of one per cent.

The combination poster and map is largely for the guidance of veterinarians and sanitary officials engaged in the work of eradication, but it is an illuminating presentation of the subject for live-stock owners also. Officials of the bureau of animal industry suggest that every live-stock association should have a copy of this "war map" against the disease as a guide in the purchase of breeding stock when its health status is not otherwise known. The poster measures 20 by 28 inches, is printed in red and black and may be obtained free on application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Dairy Hints

Cows do not enjoy moldy silage, and it makes horses sick.

Maybe scrub bulls got that name because they keep the bank account cleaned out.

Breeding, feeding, and general management of the dairy herd are the three fundamental factors to be considered in making dairying profitable.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

ANIMALS OF NEVERWERE
By DON W. REI

THE GYRATING LLAMAKIN

The Gyrrating Llamakin is a beast so very thin
He can hide behind a slender clothesline pole;
His skin is knitted wool, which is fitted smooth and full,
And his eyes are big and black like lumps of coal.

His tail is short and stunted, while his horns are flat and blunted,
And he dances like a windmill in a gale,
'Round he twirls so rapidly it would fill your heart with glee,
For he always seems to want to catch his tail.

This beast, he sleeps a lot, but he doesn't need a cot,
For he just winds himself up in a twist,
Then he looks like knitted cloth, 'till you see him amble off.
—So we'll add this comic beastie to our list.

Eyeglasses in Profusion

The late Giacomo Puccini was forever looking for his eyeglasses. His wife, that he might give free rein to his genius, therefore invested in a supply. In his study alone there were not less than five sets of glasses, one on the piano, another on his desk, a third on a little table near the fire place, a fourth on his bookcase, and a fifth on a music rack.

Color in the Household

Color has decided effect on the apparent size of a room. Light shades give an effect of space; also a distribution of colors will have this same effect; for example, a room with light walls and dark rugs and hangings will look larger than one done in dark color. Also a sense of space is created by using the same color on the walls of adjoining rooms.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview of the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

A Purpose

Seven-year-old George, a resident of Linsburg, went visiting recently with his grandfather. There were no children to play with and George soon grew restless.

Their host, noticing this, held out a nickel saying: "Here, sonny, is a nickel. Go and get an ice-cream cone."

Looking skeptically at the nickel, George said: "What are you giving me that for—to get rid of me for a little while?"—Indianapolis News.
