EVOLUTION

The evolutionist stands for and believes in a changing world. Dr. H. ratio Hackett Newman, zoologist of the University of Chicago, asserted in a statement which the defense counsel of John T. Scopes placed in the record of the Rhea county court. The statement of Prof. Newman, for for many years a student teacher and writer on the subject of evolution and heredity, said in part:

"Evolution is merely the philosophy of change, as opposed by the philosophy of fixity and unchangeability. One must choose between these alternate philosophies, for there is no intermediate position; once you admit a changing world, you admit the essence of evolution."

"We know with certainty some few things about the course of evolution, and we believe we have discovered some important phases of the mechanism of evolution, but these are controversial matters and in no way effect the question as to the principle."

The principle of evolution stands in the first rank among natural laws, not only in its range of applicability, but in the degree of validity to such an extent that it may lay claim to rank as an established law. It is the one great law of life. It depends for its validity not upon conjecture and philosophy, but exactly the same sorts of evidence as do other laws of nature.

"Evolution has been tried and tested in every conceivable way for considerably over half a century. Vast numbers of biological facts have been examined in the light of this principle and without a single exception they have been entirely compatible with it."

"A careful study of the situation reveals that the entire fabric of evolutionary evidence is woven about a single broad assumption—that fundamental structural resemblance signifies blood relationship; that, generally speaking, the closeness of structural resemblance runs parallel with closeness of kinship."

"A systematic attempt to apply the special creation concept to all cases of homologies involves one in the utmost confusion of ideas and leads almost inevitably to irreverence which is abhorrent to evolutionists as well as to the special creationists."

"There is no greater difficulty in the classification of man than in any other living species."

"Anatomically, the genus homi bears a strange resemblance to the anthropoid apes. Bone for bone, muscle for muscle, nerve for nerve, and in many special details, man and the anthropoid apes are extremely similar.

Man is many degrees closer anatomically to the great apes than the latter are to the true monkeys, yet the special creationist insists on placing man in biological isolation as a creature without affinities to the animal world.

"If man is a creature apart from all animals, it is extremely difficult to understand the significance of the fact that he is constructed along lines so closely similar to those of certain animals; that his processes of reproduction are exactly those of other animals; that in his development he shows the closest parallelism, step by step, to the apes; that his modes of nutrition, respiration, excretion, involve the same chemical processes; and that even his fundamental psychological processes are of the same kind, though differing in degree of specialization as are those of lower animals."

"According to the most recent computations based on the rate of radium emanations, one billion years have elapsed since the world first attained its present diameter. Various estimates as to the time since the first life appeared upon the surface of the globe range from 50,000,000 years to about ten times that figure."

"None of the animals of the past are identical with those of the present. The nearest relationship is between a few species of the past which have been placed in the same genera as those of today."

"There is a gradual progression toward more highly specialized forms as one proceeds from lower to higher strata in the earth's crust. Many groups of animals reached the climax of their specialization long ages ago and have become extinct."

"The outstanding fact brought out by a study of human paleontology is that of man's antiquity. According to the most expert testimony available, the oldest fossil in the human series is about a million years old; and even this estimate makes man a recent product of evolution as compared with many contemporary animals."

Summarizing the "evidences of organic evolution" Dr. Newman's statement concluded:

"All the lines of evidence presented point strongly to organic evolution, and none are contrary to this principle. Most of the facts, moreover, are utterly incompatible with the only rival explanation, special creation."

"Not only do these evidences tell a straight forward story of evolution, but each one is entirely consistent with all of the others. Thus, embryology greatly illuminates anatomy and classification; geographical distribution is aided by paleontology, and vice versa; blood tests and classification throw mutual light, the one upon the other."

"The evolution principle is thus a great unifying and integrating scientific conception. Any conception that is so far reaching, so consistent, is an extremely valuable idea and one no lightly to be cast aside in case it fails to agree with one's prejudices."

VEGETABLE SYRUP FREE

This is Your Chance to Prove That Toning Up Your Liver Will End That Tired, Run-Down Feeling. Build Yourself Up! Win Back Sound Digestion, Strength and Energy—Feel Your Very Best Again!

In his private practice Dr. H. S. Thacher demonstrated that such symptoms as indigestion, Gas on a Sour Stomach, Belching, Dizziness, Colds that Hang On, Sick Headaches, Constipation, That Tired Feeling and a general Run Down condition of the System are often the result of a Sluggish Liver—and that relief in such cases comes quickly when the Liver is properly Cleansed and Toned and the System is working normally again.

Why This Gives Relief.

When working as Nature intended your Liver does three things necessary to keep you feeling your best. First, it purifies your BLOOD, every drop of which passes through your Liver every fifteen minutes. Second, your Liver furnishes the essences that are essential to perfect DIGESTION. Third, your Liver supplies the secretions necessary to lubricate your intestines so that your Bowels can move naturally, gently and regularly every day. When your liver becomes sluggish it cannot do these three things; consequently you suffer from one or more of the symptoms above described.

Share It With Family!

Just to prove to you that you CAN get quick RELIEF, druggists are giving away FREE liberal trial size bottles of Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup. It is a syrup of PURELY VEGETABLE ingredients known to
