Upon a thorough and complete investigation and after urgent requests from various dealers of the different lines for the many towns, renters, property owners, labor and due to the fact the public has lost thousands of dollars through bank failures, deem it for the Public Good to set up two machines at this time at one expense—(a) a machine to direct scientific methods in production and distribution for the producer, its purpose was further analyzed in the daily papers of the Loop, May 6th under the heading of LOOP NEWS and also in the leading weeklies, (b) a machine that will automatically draw all dealers together each sharing his nominal monthly expense in ratio to his volume, that was analyzed in the three daily papers, May 8th under the heading of Loop Patron.

These resolutions are facts released to the public weekly through the twenty Loop papers. Kindly watch your local paper. Break the news to your neighbor.

The way in which you can immediately help this great movement is the concentration of your daily patronage to the Loop Dealer of your community and don't forget to inform him that you are a Loop Patron

We should have one or more dealers in every Loop town before the week end.

MOTHER'S DAY POEMS

The following poems were contributed by Mrs. Dunaway and Sunday School Class. The poems were written by two members of the class who were absent:

TO MOTHER

It's the finest thing that one can have
To hold above another,
No matter how poor he may have been
He's rich if he has his mother.

A mother's heart, a mother's soul
A mother's love for you
For her sake boys, cherish it,
It's the least that you can do.

And then when she's alone and old and gray
She'll be thinking of that son who Remembered her today
She'll be thinking of him and there
May be tears in her eyes

But the tears will all be of joy that
She has such a prize.

But the prize is all ours boys,
And let us see that we treat it right
Let us see we reach that goal
She hoped some day we might.

And then when we've fought our hard, est
And finally have reached that goal,
We'll whisper to ourselves and say,
"God bless her Mother's soul."
MAX DUNAWAY.

TO MOTHER

Nothing fills my memory sweeter
Than the dear old lowly home
Where my mother raised me from a toddling child

And no matter where I wander
O'er the land or briny foam
Nothing fills my memory sweeter
Than when my mother smiled.

Her dear sweet hands caressed me
As in her heart she blessed me
And still she heaps her blessings upon my childish brow

And still she lives to serve me
And still her prayers preserve me
And still she heaps her blessings on me now.

And tho my footsteps falter
By an ungodly altar
Her tears will wash away the growing pain

And tho the world condemn me
And none other befriend me
She'll guard me from the prison bar and chain.

God gave us untold treasure
Such that we cannot measure
In any place on earth we choose to roam

But one of them's much dearer
And age but brings it nearer
A mother's tender guardian love and home.

JEFF IRVING.

ALABAMA NEWS

The following letter was received from Mrs. Ella Hilton who has spent the winter in Alabama:

"Am wondering if you or any of my friends in Eastern Oregon would care to know a little about the city in which I have spent a most delightful winter.

Birmingham, the great city of the South, with its inexhaustible supply of iron and coal, its 200,000 population is the largest city for its size in the world. It has the largest yellow pine market in the world.

More fictitious writers contribute more manuscripts to New York magazines than any other state outside N. Y. and Illinois. According to population more people attend Sunday School and church than any other city.

In 1871 the first lot was sold in Birmingham for $150, now lots sell readily for $12,000 a front foot.

In 1926 it led the entire south in building, thousands of beautiful homes were erected, many nestling in the sides of the hills among the giant oaks and lovely magnolias. Flowers adorn the lawns throughout the winter.

Everything from a pin to a steam engine is manufactured here. It is a bee hive for industry, traffic is great. When I look upon the many automobiles I wonder how there can be any left for elsewhere.

The rush of the city makes one feel that there is life and activity in every thing.

After enjoying the warm climate of this city for the winter I am leaving for a visit in my old home, Pikeville, Tennessee.

Mrs. Ella Hilton.
