TO THE CIVIC CLUB

(Contributed)

It is in the city of Nyssa here Where all of the ladies for and near Have come together with one accord
To build up our civic standing.
Our yards an audience shall entrance And to all strangers we hope to Advance
A hearty welcome that will enhance,
And build up a city commanding.
Chorus
We will meet our sisters and sweetly greet,
And what is more we'll never repeat,
A story we hear whether false or true.
And create a spirit that means go through.
We'll attend the meetings that must adjourn, Because there is something we should learn
We will back the Boy and the Girl Scouts too,
We're finding just plenty of work to do
We have a city of promise here,
That hasn't a chance for a doubt or fear,
Be Jaspers, I thought and I fairly knew,
That Nyssa had stuff that would put her through.
(May be sung to the tune of Captain Jinks)

Self-Defense

"The cook has left," said the housewife.
"I don't blame her," answered the tired business man. "She couldn't be expected to go on eating the food she was delivering from the kitchen."— Washington Star.

Not Wanted

Mrs. Newrich—What's that rough-looking plant?
Gardener—That belongs to the Cae-tus family.
Mrs. Newrich—Tell them to take it home.

Looking and Listening

"I suppose all you statesmen will be glad to see one another again."
"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum.
"We'll be glad to see one another, but in a little while we won't be so rejoiced to hear one another."—Washington Star.

NO TROUBLE TO TURN

"She has a head like a door-knob."
"How come?"
"Any man can turn it."

The Next Step

Fair Client—And when he refused to marry me I made up my mind to see you.
Her Lawyer—All right, now make up your face to see the jury.

No Success

She—You're two hours late. What's your excuse?
He—I have no excuse. I've been outside two hours trying to think of

"onery" was a corruption of the word
"ordinary." It now carries the idea
