STATE COMMITTEE ON ILLITERACY ACTIVE

Each member of the committee on illiteracy for the state of Oregon appointed by the superintendent of education, Dr. Edward, with the advice of Governor Norblad, has received a letter from Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior and chairman of the national advisory committee on illiteracy, asking that he act with and be a part of the national committee in the intensive drive that is being put on for the reduction of illiteracy before the taking of the census which begins in April.

This action on the part of Secretary Wilbur marks an additional step in the campaign against illiteracy. Secretary Wilbur asks further that the state superintendent, Dr. Howard, give his permission to communicate with all county superintendents in the state, to offer them the facilities of the national advisory committee and the information and methods of procedure it has developed. The national advisory committee on illiteracy has made a careful study of the campaign against illiteracy waged in many states and makes the lessons learned in those campaigns available to whoever would like to use them. It has, as a result of its studies, prepared and published a manual of 24 lessons, the completing of which will enable the average illiterate to read and write. This has already been demonstrated in several states. The manual will be furnished by the national committee to any local organization at the mere cost of printing, or a single copy will be furnished without charge and can then be printed locally. According to the census figures of 1920, five million adults in the United States are illiterate. One out of every 14 people of voting age cannot read the warning sign of a poisoned well; cannot read, "Do Not Smoke, Explosives Near;" cannot read, "Danger, Live wire." One out of every 10 people over 21 cannot write. The percentage of illiteracy in our country is greater than that in England, Germany, Switzerland, Norway, Denmark and Japan.

The national advisory committee on illiteracy was appointed last November with the consent of President Hoover, who is very much interested in reducing the percentage of illiteracy in the United States. Secretary Wilbur, at the head of the Department of the interior, in which is located the Office of Education is chairman of the illiteracy committee. He is the cabinet official under whose guidance such studies would logically come. In the various states leading public-spirited citizens are being asked to serve by their governors and state superintendents and are rendering yeoman service.

A Statement to the People of Malheur County.

By Dave Graham.

I wish to say a few words to you. I have decided, after much thought, to try for the office of County Judge. I shall be a candidate for the nomination on the Republican ticket at the Primaries to be held on May 16, 1930. Many of you know me. I came here over 31 years ago. Most of the time has been spent in banks; but part of it with livestock, at farming and in general business. I candidly believe, the varied experience I have had, together with the contacts I have made with the county at large, the interest I have always taken in its affairs and the study I have made of same, would enable me, if nominated and elected, to fill the office with profit to the county and credit to you.

I would like you to consider the matter, carefully and seriously, and be guided by the result.
