OREGON'S
CONTINUED PROGRESS IS DEPENDENT UPON
ITS RAILROADS

More than 2,000
Oregon Homes
owned by Union
Pacific Employees

THERE is no factor that contributes more to the permanence of a community than home ownership. Two-thirds of the 3,413 Union Pacific families in Oregon own the homes they occupy, and Union Pacific employees thus add tremendously to the solid foundation upon which Oregon's progress is built.

Union Pacific employees prosper directly in proportion to the prosperity of the Railroad. If unregulated forms of transportation are allowed to undermine the Railroad's revenues, the Railroad personnel is affected, and the progress of the community is retarded.
