MORRIS MCCARTY, FARMER AT VALE, SHOT TO DEATH

A. R. HOLLINGSHED OF LITTLE VALLEY SIGNS CONFESSION AND CLAIMS SELF DEFENSE.

Claiming he shot in self defense, A R. Hollingshed, Little Valley farmer and former Vale mechanic, admitted the fatal shooting of Morris McCarty, 38, owner of the tract farmed by Hollingshed, after an alleged disagreement over the farm lease and improvements early yesterday afternoon. Hollingshed is said to have confessed voluntarily and gave himself up soon after the

Mrs. Hollingshed was at a neighbor's home during the affray and there were no witnesses. Officers report that murder charges are pending, with Hollingshed's hearing set for today.

According to reports, Hollingshed According to reports, Hollingshed has rented the McCarty farm for several years. Neighbors stated that trouble has been brewing. Hollingshed told officers that McCarty came to his house Wednesday afternoon to discuss farm affairs. As McCarty started to leave he is said to have asked his tenloaded and was in a case.
