READER ENJOYS JOURNAL POET

Nyssa—(To the Journal)—The poem "Impulsive People," written by Mrs. M. A. McDonald for last week's Journal, is good enough for our scrap book. Who knows we may have in our midst a Robert Burns or a Longfellow.

You are giving us a good newspaper. Every family should take, if possible three papers, first, the home paper to keep informed on home affairs which should be of greatest interest; and a good religious paper to keep informed on the present "Acts of the Apostles" all over the world; and third, a daily paper to keep up with the great changes over the world, economical and political.
