Valentine's Day Brings Several Jolly Parties

VALENTINE LUNCHEONS
Delightful among Valentine events were the bridge luncheons given Thursday and Friday for thirty-two guests by Mrs. Leo D. Hollenberg and Mrs. Howard J. Larsen at the home of the former. Streamers of white paper with hearts at the end of each formed a canopy over the living room. Tables were centered with red carnations and at each place were tiny candles and a Valentine. The motif was carried out in a delicious three-course luncheon. Sixteen guests were present each day. Thursday prizes falling to Mrs. A. H. Boydell, Mrs. Ernest C. Wilson and Mrs. Chas. M. Paradis; Friday prizes to Mrs. Frank D. Hall, Mrs. C. L. McCoy and Miss Betty Tensen.

OREGON TRAIL DINNER
When guests arrived for a unique dinner given by Mrs. J. B. Smith's class of the Oregon Trail Sunday School last Saturday night, they went to the hardware booth for such "hardware" as plates, knives and forks, to the baker's for their rolls, to the grocer's for more eats and to the filling station for chocolate and hot coffee. They all dined together at a beautiful banquet table decorated with tapers and Valentines—but they first matched hearts for partners. It was a very jolly party in honor of Mrs. Albert E. Hopkins' class of juniors, who won the recent membership contest. Miss Juanita Franklin is class president of the juniors.

FOR GREETINGS
Mr. and Mrs. William Schreman have invited a number of friends to an evening bridge party Saturday night in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Merritt M. Greeling, Junior, who will be transferred to a new location by the Standard Oil company. Mr. Greeling has been temporarily assigned to the Caldwell office.

MONDAY BRIDGE CLUB
Mrs. Ed. Wilson gave a dessert bridge party for members of Monday bridge club, all of whom were present. After six tables of cards, Mrs. Eddie Powell was awarded high score prize, Mrs. Dick Adams, consolation. Mrs. Ray Emmott will entertain at the next meeting.

EVENING PARTY
Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Boydell and Dr. and Mrs. E. D. Norcott invited guests for seven tables of bridge at the Boydell home Monday evening. Mrs. Leo D. Hollenberg won first prize for ladies, Ed. Wilson, first prize for men, Mrs. Ted Newell and Mr. Hollenberg, low prizes. A Valentine lunch was served at the close. An enjoyable evening is reported.

TUESDAY EVENING BRIDGE
Tuesday evening bridge club met with Mrs. Dean Smith this week with three tables of cards in play. Prize winners were Mrs. Artie Robertson, first; and Mrs. Bernard Frost, second. Mrs. Dick Tensen substituted for an absentee. A dainty lunch was served at the close.

DINNER PARTY

Miss Joyce Bailey entertained at dinner Sunday afternoon for Miss Verna Fee, Rev. and Mrs. Floyd White and family, J. E. Marman of Boise, Kermit and Bert Lienkaemper. A pleasant afternoon is reported.

JOHN FORBES RUNS
INTO MANY STORMS
ON PORTLAND TRIP

Portland—(To the Journal)—May I have a little space in your worthy Journal?

Having had a sick spell, my wife said I was no good and sent me to Portland. As fortune would have it, I was invited to accompany a salesman and a fair young lady and we started last Saturday. The wind was blowing and it was cold. Between Durkee and Pleasant Valley we suddenly quit the grade and landed in a snowdrift four feet deep, myself on the lady's lap.

The driver tried to shovel the snow away from the car but the wind had other plans. After an hour passed, a snow plow came along and pulled us out. But alas, we drove scarcely 300 yards when we landed in another drift. The plow was gone, so the driver went in search of a team. He made a rancher's heart grow large with the offer of a dollar and again we were pulled out of a drift.

After questioning the salesman as to his line of business, we found that he was an undertaker, so that explains the accidents to some degree. We encountered a real snow and wind in the Grande Ronde valley. At La Grande, one of our neighbor boys, Dick Robertson, member of the state police, said we could make it over the mountains. I was freeing on our windshield at Pendleton but on we went. Just above Hood River, the undertaker said, "It looks like Hood River is standing on end." Snow had been cleared from the Columbia highway but it was a solid sheet of ice so we were going sideways as much as end ways. We ran into another snowbank and out went a light. At 2:20 a. m. we reached Portland.

Moral: Never ride with an undertaker.
JOHN H. FORBES.

IS IT WORTHWHILE?

My God is able to inspire,
He hath inspired and will again
The life and brain and mind of men.
Then why not I, for I am weak,
Lean on His word and daily seek
Sustaining power from God.
My little book may not be found
By educated folk
Worthy the name of poetry
But call it a rhyme,
If that you will
'Tis more than just a joke.
My eyes are open to the fact
That some will criticize
But what of that,
Should souls be lifted up to loftier skies.
Yes, call me but a fool,
Should God see fit to place within my crown,
Just one bright, precious jewel.

—Mrs. M. A. McDonald,
Apple Valley.
