When it's Canyon Days in Nyssa And the boys go on a spree, They'll bust a cinch to show you, An old-time jamboree.

All the buckaroos in Oregon And from Idaho as well Will strut their stuff For we're gonna' raise some—well, 'Twill be enough

We'll be singing, laughing, joking Like the days of forty-nine There'll be no excuse for choking, Where the three-two is so fine, With the games and dames and dancing.

A TREE

Unlike graduating classes in the past the Senior class this year is leaving as its farewell token to the school, a tree. This will not only be a step toward beautifying the school grounds but it will serve as a pleasant reminder of the class of thirty-three. Letting our imagination carry us perhaps ten years from now, we can see our tree grown into a tall, sturdy shade tree, a spot of beauty, of which any school could be proud. There might be many other things the class could leave, but what could be better than something which will keep growing year after year and give so much satisfaction.
