NAVY WILL TAKE RECRUITS AGAIN

The Navy Recruiting office in Portland, has announced that after a long period of restricted recruiting it is now assigned a quota of about eighty men each month for the next several months.

After the almost complete lack of vacancies during the past several months, this sudden call for a large number of men opens up a field of opportunity to many that have felt that the chances for a naval career were closed to them. The recent decisions of the government to maintain the national defense at its highest peak of efficiency has caused this sudden increase.

An applicant must be a United States citizen, between the ages of 17 and 24, must have a grade school education, be of upstanding character, must have no dependents, have a clear police and juvenile record, must be able to pass the required physical and mental examinationns and be able to supply references as to character.
